Bookkeeping may put city in red

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Inadequate bookkeeping procedures and the failure of the last two city finance directors to institute recommended financial controls could put Romulus in a serious financial bind by the end of the current fiscal year — June 30, 1980, said Hugh Kolman.

Kolman of Doyle Litt of Troy, the city's contracted accounting firm, told the City Council Oct. 9 that until it can be determined what deficit the city faces, its spending should be "delayed or cut down."

An example of poor accounting measures occurred last year, he said, when more than $300,000 was sent to the Romulus school system instead of to the Wayne County Treasurer's Office.

The mistake caused the school system to believe it had that amount to include in its forthcoming budget. When the mistake was discovered, the school system had to pay the money back and to revamp its budget forecast, causing it some inconvenience.

Acting as interim finance director now is John Shea, who functions as "administrative coordinator-director of water and sewer billing," according to the city's personnel office.

Shea was thrust into the finance director's role when Larry Moore, full-time finance director for several years, resigned in June to accept other employment.

Noting that the end of an administration's period in office is a difficult time to attract competent people, Kolman commented: "The city would have a hard time finding a qualified finance director to put into a hornet's nest."

He said most cities, finding themselves in this position, are forced to give lengthy contracts, usually three years, to land capale people.

Until she was elected treasurer at the last city election, Helen Gallien had served as finance director for the last eight years, under her predecessor, John Lewkowicz, and the city's first treasurer, Albert Glinski.

Kolman said Doyle Litt was first involved with the city in 1974. At that time, the accounting firm included in its budget examination a recommendation calling for the city to limit the number of its accounts from 15 to 20. He explained that in 1968, the State of Michigan enacted legislation that set guidelines for the accounting of money by communities.

"We also made the same recommendation in 1975," he added.

But, in 1976 and 1977, the city chose a different accounting firm, and Kolman said he had no knowledge of what took place in those two years.

Instead of the presently recommended seven accounting funds, Romulus has 38 in which it deposits and withdraws money, he said. He said the entire procedure should be revamped.

"No one seems to know when any individual account is out of funds," he said. "For example, if an account to repair streets is out of money, the city should not go ahead and write checks on that account to repair streets."

He said the practice of the city spending additional money from accounts that are out of funds should be stopped.

Kolman blamed such practices on the failure of the city's finance directors to institute adequate controls on fund disbursements.

"That's what Doyle Litt is attempting to do now, to set up procedures so someone can step in and perform an adequate job," he pointed out.

Kolman said it was possible to get things in good working order by next January, depending upon the city administration and the caliber of people and cooperation involved.

"To get the situation in perfect working order could take as long as three years," he added.

To clear up any confusion, Kolman explained that the finance director is a person who supervises a staff; is responsible for accountability of city funds; and who provides sufficient reports to the city administration for its financial decisions.

Currently, Kolman said his assignment for Doyle Litt is to help Shea with city finances; to get the new B-80 Burroughs computer operational; and to establish procedures to get new systems running on the computer.

Questioned as to the next budget report of examination, Kolman said it was due Oct. 31, 1979, but would again be late.

Summing up his comments on the city's poor accounting of public money, Kolman said: "The ultimate responsibility rests with the mayor and the City Council."

Charge of irregularities in absentee voting raised

Irregularities in absentee ballotting are being reported, indicating that some candidates may be pressuring senior citizens and shut-ins to vote for them, says Romulus City Clerk Leonard Folmar.

The clerk said he began getting complaints about two weeks ago that some of the absentee votes his office would be receiving possibly were not for those candidates the signer really wanted to vote for.

"The last time we had trouble with absentee voting was back in 1975, and it was resolved when the courts threw out those ballots on which the signatures did not match up with those on the voter's registration card," Folmar said.

This year, however, the problem apparently is much worse. Instead of the usual 500-600 absentee votes expected, a record number, possibly as many as 1,200, are anticipated. Such a large number could easily influence the outcome of an election or proposal, the clerk explained.

Some persons waiting for their absentee voters identification card to arrive have never received them, Folmar said, suggesting that someone may be intercepting their mail.

"If the absentee voter's registration card our office sends to absentee voters comes back to our office, then we cancel that voter from our rolls," the clerk said.

If the card does not come back, and all signatures match, Folmar said he is obligated by law to recognize that the voter is legally registered.

"My office can't imagine how any candidate would do anything that was not legal, but I want the residents of Romulus to know that we are checking each and every absentee voting card to make certain that everything is above board," Folmar declared.

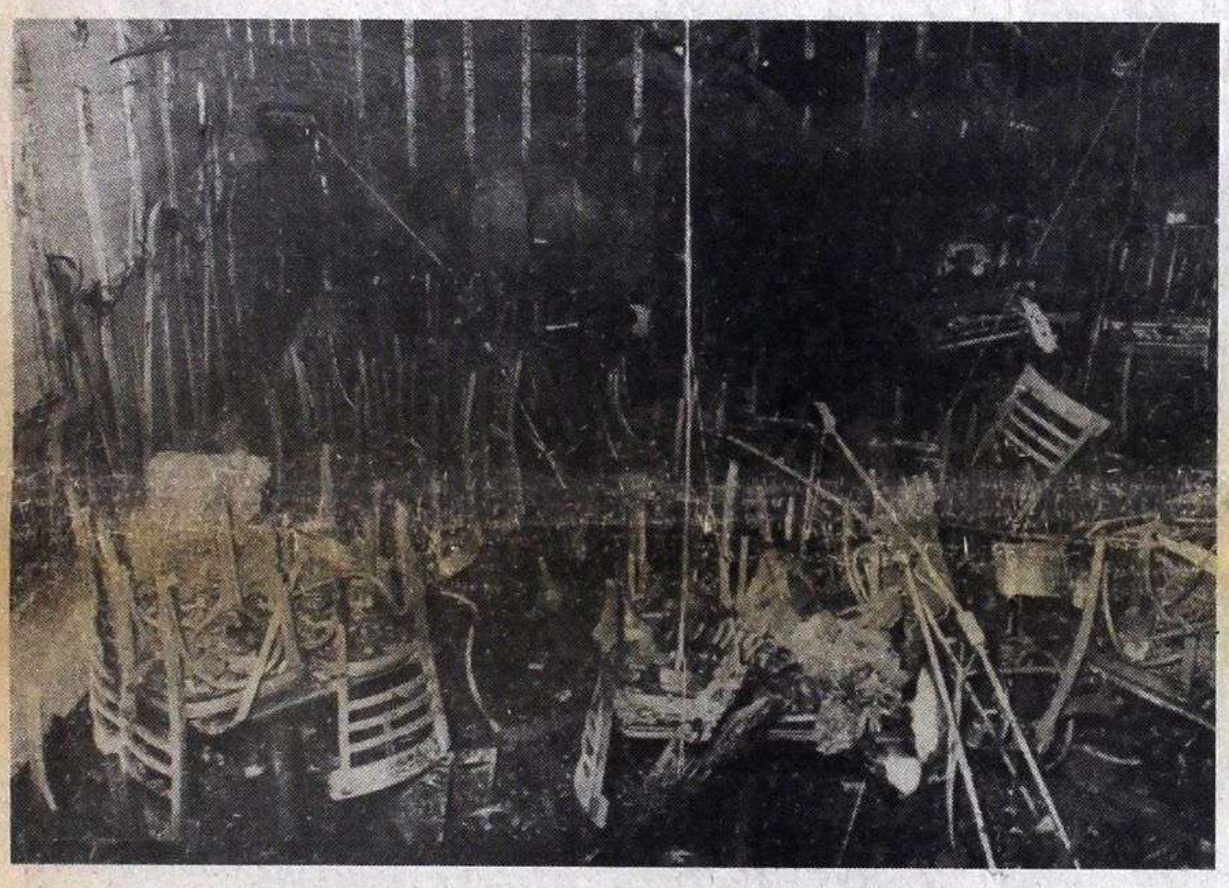
He asked that anyone with any information on irregularities in absentee voting to notify his office immediately.

"Anyone volunteering information of this nature will have his or her name kept confidential," he said.

The clerk advised that anyone who goes to the trouble of altering absentee voting cards is wasting their time.

"To get an absentee vote tallied, my office must match up the name on the absentee ballot and the identification card. If they don't match, either my office or the courts will throw them out," Folmar said.

He also warned that candidates who go to the homes of senior citizens and shut-ins who vote by absentee ballots could face serious charges if found pressuring those residents to vote for them.



Fire guts bar

Arson is suspected in early morning blaze Monday which gutted Topless Trucker's Lounge in Sumpter Township. Firemen from Sumpter and Van Buren fought fire for 2½ hours before it was extinguished. Sumpter Fire Chief Joe Mitchell reported back door of bar was wide open when firemen arrived on scene.—ANP photo by Tom Greenwood.

Arson suspected in blaze at Topless Trucker's Bar

Arson is suspected in the fire which gutted the Topless Trucker's Lounge in Sumpter Township early Monday morning.

The fire did what township officials had threatened to do, but seemed powerless to implement — put the topless lounge out of business.

Gerald Hubbard, owner, held his grand opening on May 30 of this year. After a brief flurry of business, primarily from curiousity seekers, business died down considerably.

According to Sumpter Fire Chief Joe Mitchell, a neighbor, living immediately north of the lounge, telephoned his department at 5:52 a.m. to report the fire.

"When we got here, the back door was hanging wide open," the chief said.

Some 25 to 30 fire fighters and four pieces of equipment from the Sumpter and Van Buren Fire departments took 2½ hours to extinguish the blaze, Mitchell said.

The remodeled interior of the lounge, formerly the C & H Bar, was gutted and the roof at the southern end of the building was burned away. Flames became so hot that one of the large steel girders holding up the roof was bent down several inches.

Chief Mitchell, suspecting arson in the fire, called in Robert L. Delaney, state fire marshal, and Herb Lutz, crime scene technician for the Wayne County Sheriff's Department. Delaney took several fire samples at the scene for testing at the State Police crime lab. Pending their results, the investigation remains at a relative standstill.

After Hubbard earlier this year bought the bar, the township board approved the transfer of licenses to him. After he remodeled the building for use as a topless lounge, township officials tried to shut Hubbard down.

After a considerable hullabaloo, the uproar died down and the lounge continued to operate with little incident.

Western 5 eyes cable TV hookup

The newly-formed Western Five Community Conference will investigate the possibility of obtaining cable television for its five member communities in a single package, hopefully with a monetary savings to each.

The conference's second monthly session Thursday at Van Buren Township Hall discussed cable television and the recent effort of up to three different companies to infiltrate the Van Buren Township-Romulus area.

Presiding officials of the five member communities — the townships of Van Buren, Sumpter and Huron and cities of Belleville and Romulus — felt Henry Redman, conference director, should pursue getting cable television in a joint contract, rather than individually.

Redman commented: "I will send letters to five different cable television firms asking what they can do for us together in a joint contract."

However, Redman mentioned that the 3 to 5 percent franchise fee paid back by the firms to each community in which it operates could pose a problem.

Under individual contracts, each community would realize its own revenue, while under a joint contract, the total franchise fee would have to be split up.

In addition to offering a consistently better television picture, cable television would offer up to about 35 channels, some for such formats as senior citizens activities, sports, religion, weather, stock market report, 24-hour news and special hookups on designated channel for such local events as township, council and school board meetings.

The neighborhood ballpark figure of about $15 to $16 each month would also include home box office movies of recent vintage.

Relatively unkown in the Detroit metropolitan area, cable television has been in operation in other parts of the nation for some 15 years.

Police charge suspect in burglary of home

A 17-year-old youth, who reportedly told police he is the grandson of ex-Dearborn mayor Orville Hubbard, was arraigned in Romulus 34th District Court Wednesday, charged in the break-in of a residence in the Meadows Subdivision earlier the same day.

Det. Ed Lindberg of the Wayne County Sheriff's Department identified the youth as Pierre Hubbard, who told officers he formerly lived in Dearborn and is the son of Frank Hubbard, the ex-mayor's son.

Hubbard was released on $5,000 personal bond by Judge James Stone and was ordered to appear in 34th District Court on Oct. 24 for examination on a charge of the breaking and entering.

Lindberg said the youth also is being sought on another warrant for larceny under $100, involving the theft of an automobile battery.

The youth pleaded guilty to that charge and was given a sentence by Judge Stone of an $80 fine or 10 days in jail. Unable to post the fine, he was lodged in the Wayne County Jail, the detective said.

Lindberg said his report showed that a window fan and a tape recorder were taken after midnight Wednesday from a house on Halecreek.

Lindberg said this latest arrest is one of several more expected by police following three other cases cleared up last week involving a breaking and entering, an armed robbery and the arson of a house.

Nature centers welcome students

Teachers in schools located in Wayne, Macomb, Oakland, Livingston and Washtenaw Counties now have an opportunity to schedule their classes for a visit to one of the three nature centers of the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority.

Information and appointments are available by phoning 961-5865 (Detroit).

The HCMA nature centers are located at Stony Creek Metropark near Utica, Kensington Metropark near Milford and Oakwoods Metropark near Flat Rock.

Two types of appointments are available with the naturalists:

(1) An Indoor Nature Talk appointment gives the class and teacher use of the exhibit room for a 45-minute session, including a talk by a park naturalist, who uses the exhibits and other natural objects to explain various nature topics.

(2) An Outdoor Nature Walk appointment is a 45 to 60 minute walk on the nature trails with the naturalist pointing out and explaining interesting ecological relationships of the area.

Each nature center (Stony Creek, Kensington and Oakwoods) offer appointments starting at 10 a.m. Tuesday through Friday throughout the school year.

Classes usually bring their own lunch, which can be enjoyed at nearby picnic areas.

Stony Creek, Kensington and Oakwoods nature study areas have nature trails open year-around for self-guided walks. No appointments are required to walk the trails for a self-guided (without a naturalist) hike. Rules prohibit the collection of leaves and other objects in the nature study areas.

Information and appointments for school groups are available only through the Detroit office at 961-5865. The nature center phones are Stony Creek, 781-4621; Kensington, 685-1561, and Oakwoods, 782-1255.

Final preparations made for Faust's seniors conference

Final preparations are underway for State Sen. William Faust's annual senior citizens' conference scheduled for Friday. The conference will begin at 10 a.m. at the Wayne-Ford Civic League, located south of Ford Road on Wayne Road in Westland.

Faust, who is serving his second term as Senate majority leader, said the conference will focus on senior citizens, their concerns and their special interests.

"We have received a tremendous response from those elected officials and representatives of state and local governmental agencies who will be on hand for the conference," Faust said. "Because of that tremendous response we are confident that this conference will prove to be the most informative ever for senior citizens in and around the 13th (Senatorial) District."

Faust said among the elected officials planning to attend are State Reps. William Keith of Garden City, Al Sheridan of Taylor, Thomas Brown of Westland, Robert Law of Livonia, Gary Owen of Ypsilanti, Edward Mahalak of Romulus and Richard Young of Dearborn Heights.

Among those other people planning to attend the conference are Dante DiVitto, director of the Wayne County Office on Aging, Phillip Molloy, representing the State Bureau of Retirement Systems and Office of Services to the Aging; Judy Duley, of the Residential-Consumer Services Division of the Michigan Energy Administration; and Dorothy Smith of the Foster Grandparents Program.

Faust noted of particular interest to the audience will be Sgt. Darryl Perkins of the Westland Police Department, who will talk about home security.

"In recent public opinion polls we have noted an increase in public fear regarding the safety of their homes and neighborhoods," Faust said. "We are hoping that Perkins will dispell those fears by informing senior citizens about better safety measures they can take in and around the home."

Faust said there will be other features sure to please the conferees also. They include entertainment by the John Glenn High School Jazz Ensemble and a complimentary lunch.

He added senior citizens will find brochures and pamphlets on items of interest available to them also.

"We are looking forward to a good turnout on the 26th, and I am encouraging those senior citizens interested in attending to do so," Faust said. "I guarantee we will have something for everyone."

To check Halloween treats

McDonald's eateries, lawmen team up

Checking treats

Van Buren Township Police Chief John Willet (with detector) and Capt. George Montgomery show Tommy MacDonald, 4, how state, township and county police officers will use metal detectors to inspect Halloween treats brought in by youngsters to McDonald's restaurants in their area on Halloween night, Oct. 31. Police officers from the Wayne County Sheriff's Department will participate in the annual safety program at McDonald's in Romulus to ensure that sharp metal objects are not deposited in Halloween candy and fruit. Tommy is the son of Helen MacDonald (extreme left), store manager for the McDonald's on Belleville Road north of I-94 in Van Buren Township.—ANP photo by Tom Greenwood.

Every Halloween night area children don costumes and participate in the traditional "trick or treat" custom, and every time they do their parents worry lest some harm or accident befall them.

But, children from the townships of Van Buren, Sumpter and Huron and the cities of Belleville and Romulus are more fortunate than most.

McDonald restaurants and local police again are cooperating in a special prevention program in which candy and fruit given to trick or treaters will be checked with an electronic metal detector.

Such dangerous objects as razor blades, pins and other sharp metallic items are readily detected before the candy or fruit in which they are deposited are eaten.

Children living in Van Buren Township, Sumpter Township and the Belleville area can have Halloween treats inspected from 6 to 10 p.m. on Halloween night at either the McDonald's Restuarant on Rawsonville Road south of I-94, or the McDonald's on Belleville Road north of I-94.

Youngsters from Romulus and Huron Township can take their treats to the McDonald's on Merriman Road south of Van Born Road from 7 to 11 p.m. on Halloween night and from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Nov. 1.

Trooper Bob Brandt of the Ypsilanti State Police Post and officers from the Van Buren Police Department will be on duty at the Rawsonville McDonald's. Van Buren police officers will perform inspection at the Belleville Road McDonald's.

At the McDonald's in Westland, officers from the Wayne County Sheriff's Department will do the checking of candy and fruit for area children, according to Sgt. Jerry Billiter.

Now in its third year, the detection program has been given high ratings by parents who urge its continuance.

After children have treats checked, McDonald's provides free coffee for parents who accompany the offspring and free goodies to the youngsters.

Because the metal detectors cannot pick up objects made of glass or other materials or drugs, parents wishing to have their childrens' treats checked must sign a disclaimer which does not hold McDonald's responsible for detecting those objects.

Consolidation versus charter status: Van Buren officials ponder future

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

Last night's meeting of the Van Buren Township Board was expected to answer an important question — will a 6½-year-old petition to consolidate the township and the City of Belleville take precedence over recent action to become a charter township?

Under the consolidation petition, filed with the State Boundary Commission, the township would be a home rule city as contrasted with its desire to go for charter township status. The latter, under Michigan law, affords greater protection against annexation, which the township fears from its two closest city neighbors — Romulus and Belleville.

In either case — consolidation or charter township — Van Buren residents could be taxed more than the one mill which they are now being assessed under general law township rule. However, the entire township board went on record this year as opposing any increase in taxation should the township get charter status.

Supervisor Pat Cullin said the township board was notified two weeks ago by the Boundary Commission of a petition filed May 21, 1973 during the term of former Supervisor Elton Gollwitzer for consolidation of the township and the city of Belleville.

She said Gollwitzer had attempted to file ahead of Franklin Builders, who wanted Belleville to annex a township parcel in excess of 40 acres on which the company wanted to build.

However, the builder's petition got to the state first and the land was subsequently approved by the Boundary Commission for annexation to Belleville. That annexation was the second approved recently by the commission for township land to be taken over by Belleville, increasing fears by the township board of an attempted takeover of large land parcels by either or both Belleville and Romulus.

In either case... residents could be taxed more...

Action earlier this year by the township board to become a charter township by resolution was thwarted by a successful petition drive to have the matter placed on the ballot in the next township election.

That is where the situation now stands, and the township board two weeks ago instructed its attorney, Richard G. James, to research the matter and to come back with his recommendation at its next session (last night) on whether to pursue consolidation or charter township rule.

With the Franklin Builders petition cleared up with the approved annexation, the petition submitted by Van Buren for consolidation has now been taken off the inactive list and is up for consideration by the Boundary Commission.

Should the township put the charter township proposal on the ballot at the next election, that action could put the consolidation matter in abeyance, or kill it for good.

Should the township board follow through on the petition to consolidate with Belleville and to put that issue on the ballot, the whole situation becomes much more complicated, according to Cullin.

If the consolidation issue is put on the ballot, township and city voters will be asked to vote on the question of whether or not they wish to consolidate, she said.

If their answer is no, the consolidation issue is dead. If, however, they vote yes, then city charter commissioners are elected on that same ballot for home rule city government.

Cullin said these charter commissioners would then draw up a home rule city charter and place it on the ballot at another election for voters of both Van Buren and Belleville.

If the home rule city charter is approved by voters, then the consolidation of township and city would take place, wiping out both previous governmental bodies.

If the charter is defeated, charter commissioners have the right to hold a series of public hearings to gather public input with which to amend the home rule charter.

If the amended home rule charter is approved at a special or the next election, the consolidation would take place. If not, the consolidation issue would end.

Under a home rule city type of government, residents could be taxed up to 16 mills, if that stipulation is put into the home rule city charter.

If, however, the consolidation issue is beaten, the township will pursue charter township status by a vote of the people.

If approved by voters, charter township rule would allow a maximum of five mills to be levied upon approval by the township board. Each further increase in taxation up to a total of 10 mills would have to be approved by township voters, the supervisor explained.

On the other hand, if voters defeat the charter township rule and Van Buren becomes a charter township by a township board-approved resolution only, it can still assess its residents up to 10 mills, but only with a vote of the people for anything over the one mill permitted under the present general law township status.

Cullin explained that the filing of the petition to consolidate was done to stymie annexation bids by Van Buren's neighboring cities. (A township cannot annex a city under Michigan law, but a city can annex all or part of a neighboring township.)

Housing shortage, $100,000 homes due in '80s

A housing shortage, average home prices of more than $100,000 and continued development concentrated in the gaps between present built-up areas are predicted for southeast Michigan in the 1980s.

Speaking at a recent news conference, Bernice G. McCray, chairperson of the Metropolitan Detroit Council of Boards of Realtors, said lower-priced starter homes, condominiums, lake front and income producing properties will be in particularly short supply.

She noted that the seven counties of southeast Michigan had added more than 200,000 households since 1970 despite a population loss of 38,000. The gain in households should be even higher during the next decade, she asserted.

However, the Dearborn Realtor said home buyers will continue to face problems with high costs, financing, energy costs and continued inflation.

"During the 1970s, the average new home grew larger and was furnished with greater amenities," she said. "As the rings of development expanded outward, lot sizes became larger. These factors and others, coupled with the pressure of inflation, have doubled the average home price.

"Given present price trends for land, land improvement, materials and labor, which show no signs of abating, the price of the average detached single home as we know it today may pass $100,000 by 1985."

As a result, she said new homes will be built smaller and the market will offer more condominiums and cluster housing with more new homes prefabricated for rapid installation on prepaid sites.

"Control over housing will remain at the local level," she said, "but financial pressure from the federal government will push for standard regulations. This will be part of a streamlining of government controls that now add up to 20 percent to housing costs."

McCray said future home buyers will have a wider choice in home financing methods including graduated payment mortgages. These feature lower payments in the early years and higher payments later when income is expected to increase. She also foresees increased use of variable rate mortgages, for which terms are renegotiated upward or downward at certain intervals in the life of the loan.

The Realtors expect the interest rate for home mortgages, already at record levels, to go even higher before turning downward sometime next year.

As a result of the high rates, McCray said listings have increased with homes staying on the market longer and asking prices, particularly those above average, are being reduced.

She advised persons ready to buy to take advantage of these conditions which offer a wider choice than earlier and more home for the money. But, she said borrowers should make sure mortgage loans can be paid off ahead of time without penalty, so that the loan can be refinanced, if interest rates drop a percentage point or more.

She said that tightened energy supplies and higher energy costs will cause future housing to be developed near new industrial and commercial centers and close to major public transportation corridors.

The Realtor official predicted that increased attention will be paid to land already developed with many old homes being renovated or demolished to make way for new living units.

Lawmakers rap revenue sharing plan

Senate Majority Leader William Faust and State Rep. Thomas Brown have charged Governor William Milliken with what they termed a "breach of trust" in regard to state revenue sharing.

The two Westland Democrats made their charge following the Governor's announcement that he will seek to delay when the 1980 census results are applied to the distribution of state revenue sharing funds, and his intention to base all revenue sharing payments until that time on 1970 census figures.

"I find it unconscionable on the part of the Governor to propose such a charge at this time," Faust said. "Throughout the state there are local units of government providing essential services to populations that in some cases have doubled or tripled since 1970.

"And although the demand for services has increased, state revenue sharing payments to help pay for those services has been stagnant."

Faust, who represents the 13th Senatorial District, noted that in some cases local units paid for a special census and their revenue sharing payments already have reflected the new figures.

"It is unreasonable to expect those communities to be deprived of funding that is rightfully theirs by the Governor," Faust said.

According to the State Revenue Sharing Act, local governments receive money based on census figures. Once the 1980 census is completed, the state will increase or decrease payments to reflect new population figures. Although the actual payments will not reflect the new money until Spring 1981, the law requires those payments to be retroactive to April 1, 1980.

The Governor has proposed that those payments be retroactive only to Oct. 1, 1980, and that all payments until that time reflect the 1970 census figures. This could mean a loss of tens of thousands of dollars to local government.

Rep. Brown, who chairs the House Committee on Towns and Counties, said the Governor's proposal is a direct violation of the Headlee Tax Limitation Amendment.

"The amendment demands that the state not reduce the state funds to local units of government by class," Brown explained. "We created a class of governments, Special Census Governmental Agencies, to qualify for revenue sharing based on new census figures.

"We honored that special class. We already have sent more than $5 million in additional state revenue sharing money to those local units based on special census figures, and now the Governor is telling us he wants to revert to the 1970 figures."

"It's just plain ridiculous," Brown added.

"The Governor's proposal is clearly not in the best interest of our constituents," Faust said.

MUSICAL NOTES
by Doug Brown

Ever notice the kinds of places where different types of music are played? Think of jazz, for instance. Jazz clubs are usually dark, often without windows, and small. The audience often sits around small tables or at bars. It is an intimate atmosphere. Classical music, on the other hand, is usually performed in large halls and audiences that sit in sets of rows of chairs. Often, people dress quite formally for a classical concert. Then there is rock music, again often in a large hall. But here, there might well be a multi-media presentation with flashing lights and maybe even films.

Enjoy your own favorite kind of music on an instrument from DOUG BROWN MUSIC, 9219 S. Wayne, Romulus, 941-8484. We take great pride in our selection of quality pianos and organs so come by soon and feel free to try them out. Master Charge and Visa as well as local bank financing is available.

Things that matter: Gluttony and the frying pan

By GEORGE PLAGENZ
United Feature Syndicate

A new U.S. Agriculture Department booklet, "Food," says Americans should eat more vegetables and less red meat.

This isn't the first time we have been told that it is in our best health interests to lean toward vegetarianism.

The early vegetarians did not, however, give up meat on health grounds.

They did it for moral and religious reasons.

Didn't God say, "I give you all plants ... and every tree bearing fruit: they shall be yours for food"?

Didn't the Book of Proverbs warn, "Be not among riotous eaters of flesh"?

Didn't St. Paul say, "Meat commendeth us not to God"?

The poet Shelley wrote: "Never again may blood of bird or beast stain with its venemous stream a human feast!"

It was Shelley's lines which persuaded George Bernard Shaw to become a vegetarian.

An early spiritualist, Helena Blavatsky, told how on one occasion as she was coming into Chicago on a train, "a profound sense of desolation" oppressed her spirit.

"This of course has happened to others as they have approched Chicago," wryly comments one writer on hearing Ms. Blavatsky's story.

But in this instance Ms. Blavatsky was able to search out a theosophical basis for her melancholy. She was getting astral messages — bad vibrations — from the thousands of slaughtered beasts in Chicago's slaughterhouses.

She embraced vegetarianism at that moment.

The last time a large part of the U.S. population adopted a vegetarian diet reform was in the 19th century. It wasn't for moral or religious reasons then.

"A cheap, abundant food supply and a robust habit of life sent our ancestors off on a gigantic gastronomic binge which knew no limits," says Gerald Carson in his book, "The Cornflake Crusade."

It tells the story of the food faddists — mostly clergymen and members of evangelical sects — who brought ready-to-eat breakfast foods into the American home.

Gluttony and the frying pan were ruining the American stomach. Even the poor expected to sit down to two or three major dishes at each meal.

Midday dinners consisted of two meats, gravies, pickles, vegetables, cheese, bread and butter, topped off by pudding or pie, "perhaps with fruit to fill the chinks."

The 19th century man would have scorned the modern breakfast of orange juice, cereal, toast and coffee. He wanted two meats, bread and potatoes, pickles, sometimes eggs, toast, hot cakes, biscuits and butter.

"Overeating is killing twice as many as demon rum," said the Boston Moral Reformer in the 1830s.

The manner of eating was no more delicate than the quantity of food consumed. The American gentlemen of the times ate with blinding speed, "shoveling his victuals in with his knife and afterwards cleaning his teeth with his pocketknife."

Onto the scene now came Rev. Sylvester Graham, a Presbyterian clergyman remembered best for graham crackers. (Graham because the generic name for any coarsely ground wheat.)

Graham saw only one hope for mankind — "a spare diet and a course of vegetables."

Graham recommended that all food should be cool and chewed slowly and thoroughly with abundant salivation. Water was not to be drunk with meals.

By the 1890s the fashion in eating has switched to "whole-grain foods, cheerful meals, slow eating, occasional fasting and the cautious use of fats" — recommended by the new Agriculture Department booklet.

Vegetarians in history have included Socrates, Plato, da Vinci, Einstein, Mahatma Gandhi, John Milton, Gloria Swanson and George Bernard Shaw.

Shaw, who lived to be 94, became a vegetarian at the age of 25. He remained healthy throughout his life.

But the great playwright was particular about his vegetables. He had his cook buy only the best and frequently, put his chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce at her disposal so she could go into London to get an eggplant or imported pineapple that Shaw craved.

MESC institutes Extended Benefits

The extended benefits (EB) program, which permits unemployed workers to collect up to 13 weeks of additional unemployment benefits, became effective Sept. 30 in Michigan, according to the director of the Michigan Employment Security Commission S. Martin Taylor.

Taylor said MESC studies show that Michigan's average insured unemployment rate—the rate of idled workers eligible for unemployment benefits — was 5.05 percent for the 13 weeks ending Sept. 15. When the insured unemployment rate is at or above 5 percent, explained Taylor, the extended benefits program is automatically triggered on.

"Eligible claimants are being contacted by MESC offices now," Taylor said. "But as a general rule anyone who has filed a claim and exhausted his or her benefits in the past 52 weeks may be eligible for EB."

EB is a 13-week extension beyond the first 26 weeks of unemployment benefits. EB is a federal-state program with both Michigan and the federal government picking up 50 percent of the program's cost.

EB is determined by the insured unemployment rate, which is the percent of people claiming unemployment benefits compared to all employed workers covered by unemployment insurance. The 13-week insured unemployment rate (currently 5.05 percent) should not be confused with the total unemployment rate (currently 7.5 percent) which is the percentage of unemployed of Michigan's total labor force.

The effective date for all EB claims is Sept. 30, provided certain eligibility and qualifications requirements are met. For more information, recipients should contact their nearest MESC Job Service office.

The most recent EB program in Michigan terminated July 1, 1978, said Taylor, who could not estimate how long EB would continue. However, he did say that the number of claims for unemployment benefits has been increasing recently.

Revenue bonds

The costs of financing our power systems, roads, bridges, airports, parks, and water and sewer projects keep rising sharply. Fortunately, there is something we can do about it.

Many of these community improvements and facilities are financed by issuing municipal revenue bonds. The revenue from the project, or from a special assessment on users of the service, is used to pay off the bonds. This "user-pays" concept lightens our general tax burden and has become increasingly popular in the 1970s.

The only catch is that it is sometimes hard to find bidders for the bonds. Last year, over one-half of the $28 million in revenue bonds issued nationwide were sold on a negotiated, one-bid basis to an investment banking group—the only type of firm currently permitted to bid on most revenue bonds. Public officials are faced with a take-it-or-leave-it situation, no matter what the interest cost. In contrast, when a state or municipality sells the more traditional general obligation bonds, backed by the full taxing power of the issuer, commercial banks also are allowed to bid. The result is more competition, more bids, and generally lower interest costs. That can be significant. For example, on a typical $25 million, 25-year bond issue, a mere two-tenths of one percent less interest means taxpayers save $650,000.

A bill before the Financial Institutions Subcommittee of the House of Representatives, H.R. 1539, would permit commercial banks to compete with the investment banks as bidders for revenue bonds. Naturally, the investment banks don't want the competition and are lobbying hard against H.R. 1539. But municipal financial officials, the National League of Cities and the National Governors Association, as well as commercial banks, all support the bill, as do other public interest groups. More than 70 members of Congress have joined in sponsoring the measure. Understandably so. It could save many of our local communities and public agencies a good deal of money. Any legislation that could help lighten the burden on taxpayers deserves the support of all of us. We believe H.R. 1539 should be enacted by Congress.

Alternate fuel

In a country where the gasoline powered vehicle is king, it may be surprising to know that several thousand vehicles are running on an alternate fuel — natural gas — and running well.

Developed by a group of Southern California engineers, the relatively new system for converting a gasoline engine to operate on natural gas has been installed in thousands of vehicles from taxi cabs to delivery vans throughout the U.S. and in many other parts of the world as well.

Manufactured by Dual Fuel Systems, Inc. of Montebello, California, the system is being used for primarily fleet vehicles — that is cars, vans, and trucks which return each day to a centralized refueling point.

Converting a vehicle to the Dual Fuel system requires less than a day.

The vehicle conversion components can be easily removed from a vehicle once it is retired and installed on another.

Although the system was originally developed as a possible solution to the pollution problem, economy has become a major selling point. With ever rising gasoline costs, the ability to reduce fuel expenditure by as much as 66 percent is reason enough to convert.

We hope that Dual Fuel's engineers continue to experiment with new applications of their system.

After all, what does the world need, now, more than a good 'nickle' gallon of automotive fuel.

Question of the week:

ARE YOU IN FAVOR OF AN ELECTED COUNTY EXECUTIVE FOR WAYNE COUNTY?

Wayne County's financial and structural soundness is being questioned by the State of Michigan. The great debate is: Do we want an elected executive or an appointed manager? It is no secret that Wayne County has had a financial crisis on its hands for the last few years. Deficits have risen to approximately $22 million by the end of this fiscal year and could range higher by the 1980 budget.

The Michigan Legislature has been in the process of working with the county to provide some relief in this area. The major issue is the reorganization of Wayne County government. The Governor has vetoed a $5.5 million appropriation for Wayne County until this reorganization takes place. In his veto message, he insisted on an elected county executive and a reduction in the bureaucracy.

What do you think?

To give your answer, please phone Rep. Tom Brown on Saturday, October 27 between 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. He will personally take your calls and listen to your comments on this issue. The phone number is: 422-0750.

ESSENTIAL INSURANCE

A compromise has been reached on the differences that caused the Essential Insurance Bill (S.B. 428) to get hung up on the Senate floor. Expect action on the bill in the next two weeks. The question left is whether the bill will be amended on the Senate floor and sent back to the House, or whether the bill will go to a conference committee and the proposed changes adopted there. It is most likely it will go to the conference. They should be able to get enough support for this.

VEHICLE BILL ROLLING FOR NEW "144"

Tuesday, September 25, the K-12 subcommittee for the House Appropriations Committee adopted a vehicle bill to replace Section 144 of the School Aid Act which Governor Milliken vetoed.

The new bill is a two-part formula intended to help school districts hurt by the Headlee rollbacks. The first part of the formula uses the Governor's original "grandfather" clause which would protect the district's state portion of aid only. The second part of the formula provides for a 7.7 percent increase of last year's per student aid. The bill is going to the House Education Committee for debate where, in all likelihood, it will be passed.

All parties including Democrats, Republicans, and the Executive Office feel that this legislation is needed for at least this year, so it should find no major opposition.

"CPR" BILL STILL ALIVE

House Bill 4349, sponsored by Rep. Perry Bullard (D-Ann Arbor) and mandating that CPR (cardio-pulmonary resuscitation) be taught in Michigan high schools, is still alive. The bill, passed by House Education and sent to House Appropriations, is undergoing close examination in the K-12 subcommittee. While no one doubts the value of the program, the costs of teaching CPR statewide are still unclear.

If final costs analyses satisfy Rep. O'Neill (D-Saginaw), K-12 chairman, and Rep. Bill Jowett (R-Port Huron), K-12 vice-chairman, the bill will probably move out of subcommittee and to the floor in short order. If costs aren't pared to the bone Rep. Bullard will have to revive this bill in another session.

MENTAL HEALTH

An Attorney General's Opinion has been requested by the Mental Health Department regarding the legality of designating certain private general hospitals as eligible to accept patients who are involuntarily committed.

If state funds could be used for this purpose and assuming there are hospitals that would be willing to meet the criteria for designation, patients could then receive treatment for their mental illnesses in their home community. This could mean the ultimate demise of the giant state hospitals and the establishment of true community mental health. It wouldn't happen overnight, of course, but it would be consistent with legislative policy regarding community placement and is also in line with recent court decisions regarding "least restrictive environment.

The Department of Mental Health is developing cost estimates for the recent consent agreement involving Plymouth. To reduce the census there to 100 patients by 1983 will require accelerated effort and a lot of money.

The loss of accreditation for Clinton Valley and the provisional accreditation for Kalamazoo are also likelyy to be big money issues this fall. The first scramble will be for capital outlay funds, but a bundle could be spent on "Maintenance".

Dumping (the "inappropirate" placement of state hospital residents in the community) will be one of the big issues taken up by the Mental Health Committee this fall. A bill (H.B. 4425) sponsored by Rep. Bannane (D-Detroit) that attempts to deal with the problem of information flow between the institutions and community mental health and back is being considered. It would make community mental health directors the holder of record. It also would make improper disclosure a felony. This might ease the pain for those who fear breach of confidentiality but may raise the ire of those who do not want to accept the responsibility. Another bill (H.B. 4626) sponsored by Rep. Griffin (D-Jackson) would require the department to monitor released patients for at least one year.

These bills are both efforts to strngthen the community placement process. A big complaint voiced by communities is that residents are placed and then forgotten by the system.

VFW NATIONAL HOME

The House Social Services & Youth Care Committee is continuing its discussion on the role of the Department of Social Services in the licensing of the VFW National Home. Rep. Harrison introduced two bills (H.B. 4546 and 4547) which exempt the VFW Home from the provisions of the Child Caring Organizations Licensing Act and set up a separate commission to promulgate licensing rules for the VFW Home.

Rep. Nash has proposed a substitute bill which establishes a commission to develop the rules for all child caring organizations licensed under Act 116, not just the VFW Home. The feeling is that a commission composed of representatives of those organizations would be more sensitive to the special needs of the various facilities than the DSS staff which has written the present rules.

Unless the DSS agrees to make some substantial changes in its licensing rules, it looks like Rep. Nash's bill will be reported out of committee, despite the charge that licensing rules are intended to serve the best interests of the children, not the facilities.

Nerd, Neophyte or 'Folk'

By DENNIS FASSETT
Managing Editor

Once again local elections are upon us. And "upon us" is an appropriate description.

As a firm advocate of citizen involvement, I should certainly welcome the call to arms emanating from the many diverse political camps which have sprung up around the area, but my goodness, maybe there is such a thing as too much involvement after all.

Year after year, residents are buried by campaign literature, yard signs, bumper stickers, and cheap silk screen posters hanging on almost any fixed object.

I suppose that to object to the now traditional election campaigns would be to take a slap at the democratic process itself, which I would never do, but why can't candidates for office at least be totally truthful in campaigns?

It has become nearly impossible to identify even your own candidates from their descriptions printed in either their own or their opponents' campaign literature.

If a person has ever been seen 'tipsy' in public, he is automatically labeled a poor risk by his opponents. If that person ever made a donation to the Lion's Club, he then portrays himself as the benefactor of all service clubs.

And if a candidate ever made a public mistake, every other year it becomes an issue in a campaign.

What ever happened to the thousands of 'just plain folk' who really are the community?

What ever happened to the human beings who seek election only to serve their community?

Perhaps, it is the political campaigns themselves which have shaped and distorted political campaigns.

In every community there is always a slick polished 'nerd' who makes the other candidates feel insignificant by comparison.

This candidate, while speaking of hs involvement in JFK's presidential campaign of 1960, will never fail to impress the hometown folk with his sophistication. Sophistication of the political variety. A variety difficult if not impossible to fully identify. At least difficult to identify for the just plain citizen who may be interested in his town rather than politics.

It is truly too bad that so many of these 'sophisticated politicians' have managed to infiltrate our towns and completely mess up our communities.

Show me an elected official at the local level who isn't afraid to say "I don't know," and I will show you a person most of us will be able to relate to.

But if they haven't yet been shamed into claiming to know all the answers, they probably do know all the answers.

As a public service, I would like to provide you with a fool-proof method of separating 'politicians' from public servants.

If the official sits at meetings slowly nodding his head while other officials present ideas, he is probably not listening anyway and is definitely a nerd.

If the official never presents any new ideas, but only attacks other's ideas, he is definitely a nerd.

If the official spends more time wondering who is trying to get him than how to solve community problems, he is also a nerd.

If the official launches into tirades of 'legaleese' whenever he is challenged, he is most definitely a nerd.

If the official only talks and never listens, he is worse than a nerd.

If the official boasts of his moral strength he is probably immoral and shouldn't be trusted.

If an official boasts of his integrity, he is probably dishonest.

And if an official says that he has nothing to hide, you had better start looking.

Much of the foregoing is not new to many a seasoned city council watcher. The long-time observer of the democratic process knows full well that given enough verbal rope, most politicians will shortly hang themselves.

A wise man once observed that a good politician could talk himself into anything. But a bad politician didn't stop talking until he had talked himself right out of it again.

So the next time you look at political literature, visit city hall, or attend a township board meeting, watch closely for the signs that will surely tell you if your candidate is a nerd, neophyte, or just plain folk.

The answer to my original letter published in your paper last week, rather surprised me.

My original point - defacing public property, was not discussed. And who appointed whom in charge of the Public Access Site?

There were many distorted facts, some quoted from an out of town newspaper, and also statements about a local marina owner and operator (who evidently was not involved), and previous owners of this marina - suggesting maybe they didn't get along.

I believe all who have managed the marina now and in the past were well liked and worked with the community. There has been a difference of opinion, but this is not the same.

The launch was initially built with State Funds for access to the Lake, because it had changed hands from private ownership to the Van Buren Township Citizenry.

Since that time the State more or less abandoned the land after trying to fence it once and having problems. There was no more respect for the fence than there was for the launch site recently. Watercraft still are being stolen, and vandalism is still occurring - the pile of cement did not solve the problem.

My initial question was rhetorical, and not meant to receive the kind of answer that I did. I only hoped to serve notice on people who take things into their own hands to have things their way...This is a democratic society, and though many times I disagree - for myself, my family, I would have it no other way.

You realize of course that the community has one more cost to bear - the cleanup...the Lake is still with us, whether we are allowed to use it or not.

As 1979 is drawing to a close, many of us will be reminded of all the disappointments, conflicts and tragedies we have witnessed in this brief period of time. Many of us will be disheartened, and rightfully so, for the state of our world is indeed precarious, as newspaper headlines so often illustrate.

Still there is hope — hope in the future that motivates us to work for an improvement in our lives and those of our neighbors. It's the kind of hope and motivation that The United Nations Children's Fund (UNICEF) has exhibited ever since it began its work for children following the devastation of World War II.

Today, 33 years later, the world still has its problems, but people continue to believe in UNICEF and the millions of desperately needy children it helps.

One unique way this commitment to UNICEF is expressed is through the annual sale of UNICEF cards, children's gift items and stationery.

I urge all of our citizens in the area to share in this great effort by making purchases, large or small, of UNICEF cards and gift items.

Ask Carol Premo

By CAROL PREMO, C.S.W.

You are invited to ask Carol about a problem or discuss a solution by mailing your letter to: Carol Premo, Associated Newspapers, 47818 W. Huron River Drive, Belleville, Mich. 48111.

Dear Carol

My best friend just had her first child. She wants me to be his godmother. She had checked with her parish priest about the fact that I am not Catholic, but Jewish, and he said that it was alright for me to be godmother.

I was very pleased by this honor and demonstration of friendship. A problem has arisen, her mother-in-law does not want me to be the baby's godmother. In fact, she is so adamantly opposed to a non-Catholic godparent that she has announced that neither she nor any other members of her side of the family will attend the baptismal service and nor will she permit the family christening outfit to be used.

This whole situation has become less than positive. I have offered to withdraw as godparent and be an honorary aunt or something like that. My friend, however, has refused to bow to her in-law's decree.

What do you suggest I do, for some reason I feel the focus of considerable anger and unhappiness in this situation, which really should be one of joy and thanksgiving.

God parent

Dear Godparent

How unfortunate, in fact, how tragic that after 2000 years we must still be so uncharitable to our fellow man. You would think we would have learned something along the way.

However, in reference to godparents, it is my understanding (and according to the experts I contacted) they need not be of the same faith as the parents. What they must do is promise in good faith to insure the child's religious training should anything happen to the parents. If this is your understanding and intent perhaps you could personally contact the grandparents and asure them of your feelings in this regard.

If after due consideration is given to the grandparents, they remain firm in their objections, I feel the parents' wishes should prevail. Perhaps the grandparents could seek some religious counseling in this matter so that they do not remain mired in their religious bigotry.

I hope they change their minds as to mis this celebration might be something they will always regret.

Dear Carol,

Why do people chew gum in a noisy and offensive manner. I have asked this of many individuals. They say things such as:

Gum chewing is soothing (might have something there, cows look pretty content chewing their cud).

The hygienic reason — freshens the breath (while showing the most complete view of their mouth this side of a dentists office)

To keep occupied — at least you are doing something (sure, looking mindless and unoccupied)

The dietary reason — tastes good and keeps a person from snacking (by lulling the person into a moronic stupor through repetitive mastications)

Obviously, noisy, open-mouthed, cracking gum chewing bothers me. I have found I have difficulty carrying on a conversation with someone who is so obviously involved in such important oral gratification.

How do you believe I should handle this situation when it comes up, as I full well know that this does not bother everyone.

Bothered

Dear Bothered,

First, you're quite a wit and I thoroughly enjoyed reading your letter. You brought some grins my way in an otherwise grey and dreary Michigan day.

As to how to handle the situation, you could always hand them this column although they might very well keel over from embarrassment.

Probably, it would be best to gently explain to the offender that you have difficulty talking with people while they are chewing gum and would they mind disposing of it while the conversation continues.

You might even carry a pack of gum with you and give them a stick when you leave so they would not feel their sacrifice was too great.

'An ungrateful whelp'

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

The Metro newspapers were filled last Sunday with stories on the great depression.

Some people were quoted as saying they made money during that time while others were quoted as remembering standing in bread lines so that they might keep the body fueled up so that they might look for the jobs that weren't there.

I remember the depression, too.

I remember mostly that at the time I was living through it I didn't know I was living through it.

I knew there wasn't much money and some times there wasn't any money, but I just assumed that was the way it was; and I don't remember getting frightened or anything, like the woman quoted who according to my calculations was too young to remember, since if they quoted her age correctly, makes her seven years younger than I. And I was eleven years old the year the stock market crashed.

I don't even remember it crashing!

That was the year my father brought home the first 'closed in' car in the block, and I can remember sitting on the front seat of that car, looking out of those glass windows, and making my dad drive around the block three times before Luella and her little brother looked up from the hopscotch they were playing.

But, of course, that was just the beginning and the repercussions of the crash hadn't yet caught up with us.

I do remember walking home from school and passing the bread lines stretched clear around the block. And I can remember my mother tying a dime in the corner of my handkerchief and sending me up to the butcher shop for a dimes worth of hamburger. And that dimes' worth of hamburger fed five of us, and sometimes six, when my grandmother came to visit. Sometimes it fed even more when a hobo came knocking on the back door and asked for food.

My mother always invited those hobos in. She would direct them to the bathroom where they could wash up, and while they were doing so, she would scurry around and add a plate and silverware.

Those hobos never took advantage of my mother, except, maybe, the one who stuck his head out of the bathroom door and asked if he might borrow my dad's razor...and he made a mistake probably, because he must have thought my dad gave it to him, since we never could find it again.

One time a young hobo came to the door. His blond curly hair was matted and dirty, and his clothes were torn and filthy, but there was something about the wistfulness of his eyes that got to my mother.

She not only fed him supper that night, but she made him stay overnight, and while he was sleeping she washed and ironed and mended his clothes.

The next morning she fed him a whopping breadfast and then she asked him how old he was. When he said sixteen, she let out a mighty gasp and set her lips in a way which I knew meant she would brook no objections, and she told that kid that he was going to stay right there.

The kid said he couldn't, but my mother just told him he was going to and he did. He chopped wood, he cleaned the yard, and he even cleaned out the outdoor cellar which was alive with creepy, crawling things. But he didn't seem to mind, because every time he came up out of that cellar the yard was full of creepy, crawly little pre-teen girls who would literally attack him with their shrieks and yelps.

That young hobo stayed with us through the winter and when spring came my mother gave him some money she had saved through the winter, and my father gave him some of his poker winnings, and they sent him back home to his own mother and father.

Whether he ever made it or not, whether he was welcomed home, or whether he hopped off the train somewhere between Idaho and Kentucky, we never knew....for he never wrote. And neither did his mother and father.

My father said he was an ungrateful young whelp, but my mother said he had probably lost our address, and she kept right on praying for him every night.

We knew the depression was over when the hobos quit coming. That is, my father and mother knew it was over. I never knew it was until many years later when I found out that I had actually lived through the GREAT depression.

'Pass' SALT II please

By EDWIN FEULNER

While trying to make some sense out of the almost impossibly complicated, yet vital SALT II issue, there's one more consideration to juggle around in our heads. In addition to visions of MX missiles, Backfire bombers and hidden silos, we must also keep a solicitous eye on the guy who signed the treaty for the Soviets — Leonid Brezhnev.

The "detente" era, which has brought us SALT I and II, will almost certainly see the Soviet Union through its fourth leadership change. After fifteen years' rule, Brezhnev appears gravely ill, possibly even dying and is obviously destined to step down in the very near future.

Those who sign treaties don't always stick around to enforce them. The embraces and flourishes of a signing ceremony, even if all parties have the best of intentions, often fade the morning after. After signing a major arms limitation treaty with the United States, Brezhnev will soon relinquish his power to an as yet unknown and certainly unnamed successor.

The fourth leader in Soviet history — after Lenin, Stalin and Krushchev — Brezhnev has headed the USSR during an era of steady gain in strength and world leadership. Since 1964, when Brezhnev took over from Krushchev, Russia has made such progress it is now prepared to move into the 1980s on what many experts consider to be at least equal military footing with the United States. Brezhnev's successor — whoever he may be — will be working from that unprecendented Soviet position.

All indications point to a period of U. S. vulnerability in the next several years. Somehow, the early eighties were forgotten when strategists made up our long-range plans. (For example, the much publicized MX missile won't be ready until 1985 or '86 and it doesn't take much imagination to figure the Soviets were well aware of this when, in SALT II, they OK'd development of the MX.) As William R. Van Cleave and W. Scott Thompson point out in Strategic Options for the Early Eighties: What Can Be Done?, published by the National Strategy Information Center, "by the early to mid-1980's the Soviet Union may have achieved an unacceptable edge over the U.S. in strategic capabilities."

Any potential Soviet leader worth his SALT would be tempted to push the advantage.

In a recent Heritage Foundation study, researcher Richard Harrison explored the Soviet foreign policy outlook after Brezhnev. "In the early stages of post-Brezhnev transition," says Harrison, "Soviet policy would probably be relatively moderate and less prone to foreign entanglements. This has certainly been true in the past during both the Stalin and Krushchev succession periods, as the ruling groups turned inward and devoted most of their energies to domestic problems and jockeying for power."

"On the other hand," Harrison writes, "the Soviet Union might become even more adventuresome overseas under a new ruling group. The next leadership team will be the first to achieve power when the Soviet Union is not recognized as militarily inferior to the U.S. The new leadership will be able to thank the current regime for this new international authority; for the achievement of strategic parity with the U.S. has been the outstanding accomplishment of the Brezhnev years. This new sense of power might actually encourage expansionist tendencies within the new leadership."

As time passes, says Harrison, "the succession issue and the policies resulting therefrom become more difficult to predict. One thing is unlikely: with the passage of time and as more of the older rulers fall away, the chances for any sort of continuity in foreign policy grows slimmer as the likelihood of a new leader with less experience in foreign affairs, and less secure in his own position, increases."

Whatever direction Soviet policy takes in the future, Harrison concludes, there's little chance of a lessening of tensions between the U.S. and the USSR due to a change in Soviet leadership.

Living with inflation

Investments, too, must be adjusted to counter it

(Last in a series of five articles)

"A penny saved is a penny earned" may have been solid advice in Benjamin Franklin's day, but in these inflationary times it would have to be updated to: "A penny saved at less than 9 percent is a penny that's shrinking fast."

For the money we put aside is just as susceptible to inflation's shriveling effect as what we spend.

If it doesn't grow as fast as inflation, it diminishes.

Tapping their pool of experience as advisors to the money managers of the business world, members of The Michigan Association of Certified Public Accountants offer some pointers that industry follows and which might help families, too, save and invest profitably in a period of heavy inflation.

An association spokesman emphasized that while CPAs rarely are investment counselors, they do frequently help clients weigh the myriad combinations of interest rates, appreciation, liquidity, safety and tax consequences that various investments offer and advise which type of package is most likely to suit a client's particular situation.

Business firms, they say, feel that in these times especially they must be relentless in pursuing advantageous ways of keeping otherwise idle cash busy producing income. Some companies even have staffs of people — cash managers — who spend most of their time on the telephone running down desirable places to "park" funds not immediately need in the business. Some of these short-term investments, such as Eurodollar certificates of deposit, may be too exotic, or risky, for the average individual, but they should be explored.

The important fact for the individual saver or investor to remember, say the CPAs, is that there are alternatives to E-bonds and low-interest savings deposits, and if the individual wishes to emulate business investors he will devote time and effort to finding what his options are and examining their suitability for him. Even if you leave your money in a savings account, there are different types of accounts and different rates of return. Banks can be surprisingly flexible, so shop around.

Suitability is affected by the degree of risk an investment entails. Also by its liquidity; if, to earn high return, funds must be tied up in something that can't be quickly or easily sold, the investor may find himself unable to deal with a financial emergency or to take advantage of another, better investment opportunity that may come along.

In inflationary times, investments in physical things — commodities, real estate, or collectibles such as art works, for example — and securities backed by physical things, such as mining stocks, often tend to keep pace with the inflation rate. But there's something to keep in mind about investments in jewelry, paintings, antiques and other collectibles: a non-dealer you are likely to buy at retail and sell as wholesale.

For the average family, an investment in real estate — at least to the extend of owning its own home — may be the best inflation hedge. It forces you to save — to build equity. If it's well-constructed and located in a good neighborhood, it appreciates in value, especially in periods of inflation. When you sell, you can avoid capital gain tax on any profit by reinvesting in another home costing at least as much. And after you reach age 55 you can sell without reinvesting and take as much as $100,000 profit without paying any tax.

A final suggestion from the CPAs: if you believe tax-free investments such as municipal bonds are only for the well-to-do, look again at your income. Inflation may have pushed that up, too, to the point where low-interest municipals are a bargain because of what they save you in taxes.

Dress 'goblins' wisely

Before your children scramble out the door this Halloween night in search of goodies and goblins, make sure they're well-apprised of basic Halloween safety rules.

It's a good idea to hold a "Safety Briefing Session" a day or so before Halloween when children are more open to suggestion — rather than on Halloween night when they're anxious to join fellow trick-or-treaters. Here are a few safety suggestions to help assure everyone's peace of mind on Halloween night:

— Encourage your children to trick-or-treat with groups of friends in familiar neighborhoods. Younger children should be accompanied by adults or older children.

— It never hurts to repeat the obvious. When trick-or-treating, children should stay on sidewalks and cross streets at intersections and crosswalks. They should be dressed warmly and comfortably, avoiding high-heeled or too-big shoes which may lead to unnecessary mishaps.

— Give your children flashlights, never burning candles or jack-o-lanterns, to help them find their way from door-to door.

— Choose a costume that allows full peripheral vision, unimpaired hearing, and leaves arms and legs free for unrestricted movement.

— Feed children a hearty, nutritious dinner before they leave on their trick-or-treating rounds. This will limit the temptation to eat candy before they get home, and before you have a chance to personally give it your "seal of approval."

And here's a few more suggestions from the National Safety Council that should be used in selecting Halloween costumes:

(1) Make sure costume is flame resistant, light-colored, and includes self-adhesive reflective tape;

(2) Make sure child has freedom of movement in costume so that he won't trip; and,

(3) Masks that obstruct vision should not be worn. Make sure child can see peripherally.

WHAT OFFICIAL INFORMATION ABOUT ME MIGHT I EVER NEED?

When accurate information is needed to fill out forms and announcements, it is often hard to locate or remember. You need all sorts of information when you marry, buy insurance, apply for credit or a job, and, yes, even when death occurs.
It is wise to prepare such a total record now and keep it in a safe place ... not in a safety deposit box because they are usually locked until after the funeral, but rather in a locked drawer of your desk. Do, however, inform your spouse of where this information may be found.
Information most often needed includes: 1) full name, address, Social Security number, armed forces serial number, 2) birthdate and place, 3) blood type, 4) employer records, 5) name of father's and mother's birthplace and date, 6) names of organizations and publications to be notified, 7) location of important documents, 8) any special funeral preferences or pre-arrangements, 9) pre-arranged donation of eyes or body organs, 10) names and addresses of all persons to be notified of your death.

Champs are next for John Glenn

Rockets fall to North Farmington, 17-7

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Sports Writer

John Glenn has been known as the "big play" team the past few years in rolling up a winning grid percentage that ranks near the top in the state.

This year they're a big play team, also. The only trouble is that it's the other team that's coming up with the big play.

The same was true Saturday afternoon as North Farmington scored two fourth-quarter touchdowns in a come-from-behind 17-7 victory over the Rockets in the Northwest Suburban League finale. The win gave Coach Ron Holland's Raiders a second place tie with Gary Humphrey's Garden City East Panthers with 3-2 records behind champion Redford Union's 5-0 mark.

Coach Chuck Gordon's Rockets wound up with a 2-3 record, good for a third place tie with Livonia Franklin's Patriots. Thurston ended in the cellar with a 0-5 mark.

"Our defense is making critical mistakes that is allowing the big play to beat us," Gordon said after the game. The disappointing part is that North Farmington's two touchdowns came after Glenn's defense had held the Raiders to just three points for the first three quarters.

In fact, the game statistics were very close as Glenn rolled up 12 first downs to their opponents' 13 and gained 161 yards rushing and 39 passing to North's 129 on the ground and 85 through the air.

The home squad took the opening kickoff and drove all the way to the Glenn 10-yard-line before the Rockets stiffened and Rich Nutter drilled a 27-yard field goal through

Marked man

Monroe's Bob Demarco (7) eyes the field ahead as Wayne Memorial's Dave McCahill (73) and Robert Spada (70) try to get into range. Demarco, considered the premier quarterback in the Great Lakes 8 Conference this season, came back from an injury that had sidelined him for two weeks to lead the Trojans to a 30-7 victory and spoil Wayne's Homecoming festivities Friday night.

Coast is clear

One of the reasons for Monroe QB Bob Demarco's passing success Friday night was his receivers' ability to roam free in Wayne's secondary. Demarco hit on nine of 13 passes for 165 yards and two touchdowns in extending Wayne's losing streak to three games. Above, Larry Wilson (22) is out of reach to do anything about this completion.

RU rules Northwest grid world

In one season Redford Union accomplished what it couldn't in nine years in the Suburban 8 Conference - capture a football championship.

Shutting out Livonia Franklin 14-0, R.U. completed its first year in the Northwest Suburban Conference with an untainted 5-0 record and the league title.

"They're tough," said Franklin's Armand Vigna, referring to the newly-crowned champ's strength. "They have an excellent team, and they are very much in contention for a post-season playoff berth."

Franklin will travel cross town Friday night to clash with city rival, Churchill, which wrapped up its second straight Western Six Conference title last week with a perfect 5-0 record thanks to a victory over Northville.

Vigna sees the pending confrontation as a defensive one, pointing out, "that Churchill is defense orientated like we are. But they are having trouble, as we are,too, putting points on the scoreboard."

Churchill lost its season opener to undefeated Dearborn Fordson, then went on to win six straight. Coach Ken Kaestner's Chargers will host the 7:30 p.m. out-of-league game with Franklin Friday, and wrap up the season a week from Friday at Livonia Stevenson.

Redford Union scored late in the first quarter against the visiting Patriots as John Utych tallied on a 12-yard up-the-middle trap with 4:36 remaining. R.U. got some help from their opponents who gave up the ball deep in their own territory as a result of a poor snap.

Tom Holme's first of two point afters lifted R.U. into a 7-0 lead.

The champs earned their second touchdown, a 92-yard, 10 play drive which ended with Bobby Friedman's dive over the goal line. That TD came with eight minutes to go to intermission.

Franklin lost senior quarterback Jon McCarthy in the third quarter to a suspected broken hand. McCarthy was replaced by Scotty Lovich who went on to complete four of 11 passes.

"R.U. blitzed us and we couldn't handle it," Vigna said. "But we had our shots in the first half - if we had hit a couple of those it may have been a whole lot different."

McCarthy and Steve Droz, who rushed for 58 yards in five tries,stood out offensively, and linebacker Dave Rettig contibuted more than his share on defense.

But R.U.'s ground game, which accounted for all of its 187 yards, came up with the "big play" when needed.

And that's what wins games. And championships.

Schuele: A year of turmoil

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

The sideburns are getting grey and the furrows on the forehead deeper, but Dave Schuele remains calm in this what could be his worst season in football.

"I really can't explain it," said Schuele, whose Canton Chiefs were drubbed 49-0 last week by Farmington Harrison. "We had great expectations for this team."

This was supposed to be the "idyllic" season for Schuele and the Chiefs who last year, with a flock of sophomores and juniors posted a 4-5 record, the best in the young history of the Plymouth high school.

Seven games into the 1979 season Schuele and his team haven't tasted the proverbial fruit of victory.

A man with an unbroken string of triumphs as the head coach at Highland Park four years ago, Schuele brought his impresive dossier to the Western Six Conference. He has failed to break up Livonia Churchill and Farmington Harrison's monopoly of the conference titles.

Last year, Coach Ken Kaestner's Chargers at Churchill won eight consecutive games before losing in post-season play and, this year, after dropping their out-of-league opener to Dearborn Fordson, the Chargers have won six straight.

The battle-wise Schuele can be meek and tough at the same time, but he is unflinching when it comes "to wanting a winner."

"Whenever you lose you're going to get some sort of flack and criticism," he says, "and that's understandable. But I still believe we can produce outstanding teams here and with 22 juniors in our line-up that may not be too far off in the future.

"I don't think a coach is putting exorbitant demands on his player or players when he asks him to do his best — if each and every one of us does, then inevitably victory will follow."

I don't think anyone will argue that point.

Now for a couple of public service announcements:

Canton's cage team and cheerleading squads will attempt to play and cheer for a span of 24 hours on November 16 and 17. The monies raised will go toward the two groups' programs, according to Rebecca Hayes.

"We hope to make some money by taking pledges per hour for each of the 24 hours that we either play or cheer," Miss Hayes, who is captain of the Varsity Cheerleaders, said.

There will be a "Meet the Chiefs" program at 7 p.m., when Coach Craig Bell will introduce his players. At 8 p.m., the actual marathon will begin and run until 8 p.m. Saturday.

Meanwhile, over at Belleville High, the boxers will put on gloves and come out swinging to help the Tiger swimming program, according to Chuck Fecay.

Fecay, who is employed by the Adventure Travel Service in Belleville, said that his group hopes to raise money to support the Tiger swimmers.

The boxing show will take place at 8 p.m., November 10 at Belleville High and tickets, at $5 each, may be purchased at the high school.

Homecoming ruined

Injured Monroe QB comes back to haunt Wayne, 30-7

The elements and Monroe conspired to make Friday night one of the most miserable nights for a Wayne Memorial Homecoming.

The rains and the Trojans dashed Coach Floyd Carter and the Zebras' hopes, 30-7.

"It was a good game until the last four minutes," said Carter whose team has now lost their last three after winning the first four games. "We can't blame the rains — it rained on both sides of the field."

Monroe stunned its host on the opening kickoff which Dave Pendt ran back for 85-yards for a touchdown. Bill Daniel kicked the extra point and with less than a minute expired in the game, the Trojans had a 7-0 lead.

Wayne wasted little time tying it up. The Zebras, guided by junior quarterback Rick Covault, marched to the 18-yard line where fullback Darryl Hamlin raced up-the-middle untouched and into the end zone.

Pete Tavana, nursing an injury, managed to come in and kick the extra point.

"We had been hitting them with off tackle palys," Carter explained, "so, we decided to use Hamlin with a quick up-the-middle dash and it worked perfectly."

However, Monroe broke the deadlock for good after the ensuing kickoff.

In their next series, quarterback Bob Demarco put together a 69-yard, nine play sustained drive which he capped with a six-yard touchdown pass to Brian Lay. Daniels again kicked the extra point and the two teams dispearsed at halftime with the score 14-7.

Just before the half, Covault put on a display of aerial heroics, hitting on three consecutive passes to three different players — Bruce Gaudi, for 14 yards, Ken Tobe, for nine and Larry Wilson, for eight yards, to move the Zebras from their own 18 to the Trojan 45, but the Wayne quarterback was sacked on the last play of the half.

Monroe got a 41-yard field goal from Daniel with 1:10 left in the Conference meet to break deadlock

With once-defeated Livonia Franklin handing North Farmington its first setback, and Westland John Glenn coasting past Garden City East, three teams have finished the regular Northwest Suburban Conference cross country season in a tie for first place.

And the three - Franklin, Glenn and North Farmington will have to settle their title differences at the conference championships which were held Tuesday (Next week's edition will carry complete results of the championship) at San Marino.

"Each of the three teams have lost but one dual meet," said Franklin's Bob Holmes, "so it's a winner-take-all situation."

Franklin probably has the No.1 runner in the league in junior Paul Coburn who led the Patriots against North. The Livonians picked up their third win, 27-30.

Coburn was clocked in 15:50 and crossed the finish line just before teammate Jeff Bristow, who was second. Franklin also finished fifth with John Lank, seventh with John Hart and 12th with Mike White.

Meanwhile, the Westlanders spotted East first and second place but swept the next five spots with Santo Campbell, Tom Andrews, Tim Unold, Jim Kanclerz and Pete Stephens for a 25-36 victory over the Panthers. That enabled Coach Jerry Szukaitis' Rockets to stay in the pack with the leaders.

Glenn also crushed Thurston 17-42 in an earlier meet as Campbell, Unold and Stephens accounted for the first three finishers and Aaron Staples was fifth and Andrews sixth for the winners.

In their annual "Golden Shoe" trophy meet with rival Wayne Memorial, Szukaitis' troops eked out a close 26-29 victory to return the 'shoe' to their display case.

Campbell and Stephens again set the pace as they covered the three-mile course in 16:13 and 16:31 respectively, but Wayne had the next three place with Mike Tolson, Chris Strome and Alan Spencer. When Randy Frank and Paul Davis crossed the finish line sixth and seventh, respectively, Glenn assured itself of the big victory.

He's undefeated

Tolson wins U-MD CC title

Taking his cue from the weather, Wayne Memorial's Doug Tolson set a torrid pace to win the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus cross country invitational title over the weekend.

Tolson, the defending Class A state champ who remains undefeated on the year, covered the 3-mile Dearborn campus course in 15:07. The winning time was shy of Tolson's record winning performance of a year ago.

"It was hot and humid, unseasonable weather especially for cross country," Wayne Coach Ernie Righetti pointed out. "But Doug got the job done as he has been able to all year long."

However, Wayne didn't manage to capitalize a whole lot on Tolson's individual triumph. The Zebras finished in the middle of an 18-team field. Birmingham Brother Rice runners won the team championship and Brighton was second. The only other local team that competed, Belleville, finished behind Wayne, in ninth.

Wayne will need somewhat of a miracle to unseat Fordson from the Great Lakes 8 Conference throne on Tuesday. With a couple of losses to their record, Righetti's Zebras only have slim chance at best to emerge ahead of the Dearbornites in the final standings.

"We could possibly win the league meet, but the dual meet record is counted toward the over-all championship and with two losses on our record, it's almost impossible to win it."

Fordson therefore will be favored to retain the title when the teams gather Tuesday at Taylor Center.

Meanwhile, Wayne swamped Lincoln Park 15-25 and destroyed Monroe 19-34 to pad its record to 4-2. The Zebras wind down their league dual meet commitments on Thursday against Wyandotte.

Tolson crossed the finish line first against the Trojans of Monroe and teammates Don Wellman, Mike Tolson, Andy Stopcinski and Bob Swain swept the third through sixth places. Allan Spencer was ninth.

Foley: 'Our best game'

Romulus comes from behind to edge Oak Park

Romulus could not have found a better time or place to play what coach Don Foley labeled, "Our finest game".

Coming from behind, the Eagles knocked off a highly-touted Oak Park, 13-7, Friday afternoon before a Homecoming crowd. It was Romulus's second straight victory after five frustrating defeats.

"This was the best game we have played all year," Foley said. "I'm proud of these kids. They never gave up and as the cliche goes, 'the team bent, but didn't break."

A sterling 98-yard record punt return by Richard Hoth put the Eagles on the road to victory. Hoth scored midway in the third quarter with the help of a key block by Marcus Oden.

Then, quarterback Marty Knight kicked the extra point to tie the game at 7-all.

With 3:20 left in the game, Romulus broke the deadlock on Shawn Green's two-yard touchdown run. That climaxed a midfield drive after Randy Champagne recovered one of five Oak Park fumbles. A crucial play in that touchdown series was Mark Schick's excellent catch of a Knight pass, good for seven yards and a first down at the Oak Park 25-yard line.

The Parkers kept the outcome of the game in doubt until the final minute. They came back after the ensuing kickoff and marched to the Romulus 11-yard line where Tyrone Golden came out of a pile of gridders with the football. The Eagles kept the ball for the last 50 seconds of the game.

Oak Park got on the scoreboard in its first series of plays in the first quarter on a 25 yard pass play. The TD was set up by a bad Romulus snap from center which sailed over the punter's head.

"It was the kind of game where we could have easily given in, but we didn't," said Foley. "We were inside their 20-yard line on four separate occasions and stopped ourselves with fumbles."

Romulus came within six yards of a third TD early in the fourth quarter when Hoth grabbed a Knight pass and scampered 55-yards with it before he succumbed to a Parker tackler at the six.

Substracting the 25-yard loss on the bad snap, Romulus finished with 72 yards rushing and 11 first downs. Knight connected on 12 of 20 passes for 137 yards.

Tailback Vince Carter, who rushed for 73 yards on six carries, led the Eagle ballcarriers while Tim Summerfield, who counted two fumble recoveries, a blocked punt, five solo tackles and an equal number assists, was the mainstay of the defense. Joining Carter for defensive accolades were Mark Inch, a 6-1, 190 pound tackle who finished with eight unassisted and three assists. Rob Knight came up with seven solos and three assists.

Romulus could add to its modest 2-game winning streak by beating Dearborn Heights Annapolis on Friday, but Foley cautioned that the Cougars have plenty of experience and an excellent quarterback in Rich McGuire. The Eagles will be playing their final home game of the 1979 season when the Dearborn Heights gridders come to town. They'll hit the road to Riverview the following week.

"Annapolis is a much improved ball club over its previous team," Foley said. "They beat an excellent Algonac team 14-0 last week, so no one in these parts is taking them lightly."

Glenn girl tankers coast to victory

John Glenn's girls' swimming team continued to look impressive last week as Coach Jim Lawrence's Rockets picked up back-to-back victories.

The Westlanders earned seven first places in their 118-47 triumph over Livonia Churchill, then went on to defeat Thurston 95-77 in a Northwest Suburban meet later in the week.

Karin Stover turned in a record-setting 5:56.2 for the 500-yard freestyle, one of the highlights against Churchill.

Despite four first places, Glenn had the depth to handle the Redford swimmers from Thurston. Miss Stover accounted for two of those four first places as she touched in first for the 200 yard freestyle and also registered a victory in the 100-yard butterfly.

It's last chance for Huron to settle score with Tecumseh

Tecumseh will be defecting from the Huron Conference after the end of the current season and if Coach Tom LaBeau and his New Boston Huron Chiefs want to settle the score with their league rival they'll have to do it Friday night.

"We have never beaten them," LaBeau pointed out after Huron's phlegmatic performance last week at Flat Rock. Flat Rock jolted the Chiefs 18-7.

"Like Flat Rock, Tecumseh also likes to control the ball, and we're going to have to break up their plan if we want this last victory against them."

Friday night's game at home (7:30 p.m.) will also be Huron's final conference contest for the 1979 campaign. The Chiefs will carry a 3-3 league and a 3-4 over-all record into the game. They'll wind down the season a week from Friday at home to out of league rival, Woodhaven.

Huron drew first blood against its host, Flat Rock, but that's about all the Chiefs managed to do. After an exchange of punts in the first quarter, Huron quarterback Dave Satneck put together a sustained drive of about 60 yards that ended with running back Bob Bokor's one-yard touchdown lunge.

When Satneck successfully converted the point-after, the Chiefs boasted a 7-0 lead.

But Flat Rock's offense was just too much for Huron's defenders to handle.

"They beat us in every way imaginable," LaBeau said. "They controlled the ball so well that we only got one first down the rest of the way."

Though Huron managed to take its 7-0 lead into the lockeroom, it couldn't protect it. Flat Rock scored early in the third quarter on a 20-yard pass from Greg Kohn to Paul Hutchinson. But the hosts failed to convert.

They made up the difference in the last 12 minutes of the game and jumped to a 12-7 margn on Kohn's quarterback sneak from the 'inches line'. Flat Rock scored an insurance touchdown when Andy Wann raced over the goal line from two-yards out after Satneck was intercepted.

Flat Rock had the edge in first downs 17-7 and in rushing yardage 244 to 74.

"For some unexplicable reason we were flat for this one," LaBeau offered. "Let's just leave it at that."

3 records fall as Wayne dunks Fordson swimmers

Erasing three records from their board, Wayne Memorial's girls' swimming team remained undefeated last week with an easy 122-50 victory over Fordson.

Coach Jim McPartlin's Zebras will place a four-meet winning streak on the block Tuesday when they clash with Monroe, the defending Great Lakes 8 Conference champ.

"Monroe has an excellent front line team," Coach McPartlin stressed, "and it will take the depth of our team to defeat them."

Wayne will have a parents' night crowd on hand for the 7 p.m. scheduled duel.

Meanwhile, Wayne received three outstanding performances from sisters Gretchen and Cathy Batterson along with Mary Jo Mason in the Fordson meet. Wayne swept 10 of a possible 11 first places.

Gretchen won the 500-yard freestyle in the school record time of 6:03.4, eclipsing the her previous best of 6:06.5. Cathy bettered her and the school's previous best for the 100-yard backstroke with a 1:09.1. She had been clocked in 1:09.9 for the event.

Miss Mason touched in at 1:15.9 for the 100-yard breaststroke, beating her previous best of 1:18.1.

Inkster is favored to win SAC title

Undefeated in eight conference dual meets, Inkster High will be the team to catch in the annual Suburban Athletic Conference championships to be held at Rouge Park.

And the team that could possibly upset the Vikings' bid for their first cross country championship is natural rival, Dearborn Heights Robichaud, which will have the frontrunners.

The big question is whether Robichaud Coach Jim Hadley has the depth.

"Inkster has the numbers but they don't have any real standouts," Hadley pointed out. " I don't think any one is going to beat our Bruce Brock across the finish line. It's a question of depth - and Inkster had plenty of that."

The SAC meet is scheduled for Oct. 24 at 10 a.m.

Brock meanwhile finished second in the Class B phase of the University of Michigan-Dearborn campus invitational held Saturday. His 15:50 performance was the third best time posted by a field of more than 250 runners.

Wayne Memorial's Doug Tolson (Read related story on first sports page) won the Class A section of the meet.

Robichaud wrapped up its dual meet season with a 23-34 victory over Willow Run, then defeated Highland Park 22-36 in the finale of the SAC dual meet season.

Brock finished first in both of those meets.

Anthony Davidson finished third against the Flyers and teammate Michael Tucker was fourth. Coach Hadley also received a seventh place with Marty English, and eighth with Eric Hicks.

Area teams will be heading for New Boston Huron on Saturday to compete in the state regional championships. The survivors will advance to the state championships to be held a week from Saturday.

Svabik

Sophomore Paul Svabik has found himself a starting position as a linebacker for the Grand Valley Lakers.

Svabik, a 6-2, 180-pounder out of Westland John Glenn, was one of Coach Harkema's top 1978 recruits and Svabik has paid off for the Lakers.

On the year Svabik has been in on 22 tackles including 12 solos, and should be among the team's leading tacklers before the end of the year.

The Lakers, despite all of their impressive statistics, have found themselves 2-3 on the year at a point where 4-1 would have sounded more like them.

The Lakers' troubles are not over as yet as they will be facing some of the tougher teams in the league in the next couple of weeks.

Inkster 'perfect' against Robichaud

Vikings spoil arch-rival's Homecoming, 50-0

Coach Arnice James isn't one to use superlatives when it comes time to discuss his football team at Inkster High.

But after the Vikings destroyed arch-rival, Dearborn Heights Robichaud, 50-0, last week James had ample reason to be proud.

"It was the best game our kids have played in recent history," James said. "It is the first time that either team has won - or lost - by such a large margin, and I want to stress that we weren't pouring it on. It just happened that everthing worked out. We didn't do anything fancy. It was all hard-nose football."

From the moment Keith Hughuley dashed over the Robichaud goal line from the 36 early in the first quarter to his 15-yard touchdown run in the last quarter, Inkster was in command.

Ironically, they weren't supposed to be. Robichaud, the defending but ailing Suburban Athletic Conference champ, was favored to knock off their neighboring rivals. It didn't pan out that way.

Why?

James had this explanation: "We had an excellent practice all week and I truly felt we were going to win if we took it to them. And we did."

The loss also put a damper on Robichaud's Homecoming festivities.

Inkster quarterback Kim Hammons hooked up with Derrick Stephenson on a 32-yard touchdown pass for the second Viking score and Thaddous Forman sprinted 20 yards into the end zone for the third TD. Hammons came back with a sterling aerial to Eric Crouch which covered 45-yards for TD No.4 and Ron Jones capped a moderate drive with a six-yard touchdown run for the Vikings' fifth touchdown.

Hammons' 10-yard sweep and Hughley's 15-yard run accounted for the final two Inkster TDs.

Inkster's secondary was kept busy as Robichaud tried to play catch up and Forman picked off two of four interceptions. DeShawn Wells and Ray MacMillan got the other two.

The Viking defense relentlessly

the uprights for the only score of the first half.

Glenn came out roaring in the second half, taking the kickoff and marching 76 yards in 16 plays to take a 7-3 lead. Ken Liedel, playing his second game in a row at tailback, was the main workhorse in the drive. The former quarterback rushed for 83 yards in 18 carries for the game, nearly five yards a try.

Junior quarterback Rick Discher executed well on the drive and Liedel did the "groundwork". The drive was successfully completed when Liedel took a handoff and swung wide around right end. With the North defense rushing in, Liedel flipped an 8-yard touchdown pass on the run to end Bill Dye. Junior Tackle John Johnston kicked the extra point to put the Rockets in front, 7-3, midway through the third quarter.

Glenn's defense stopped North Farmington's attack on the next series and took over on its 36-yard line. Discher helped "dish out" two first downs as Glenn moved smartly to the Raiders' 40-yard-line. Then disaster struck — in the form of a fumble, one of three "big plays" that turned the game around in the closing quarter of the game. An alert Raider defender pounced on the Glenn bobble on the North Farmington 40 and Coach Holland's crew drove 60-yards for the go-ahead TD. Quarterback Greg Goldstein, who galloped 54 yards on eight carries, was the hero in the final 12 minutes. He capped the 60-yard march with a 20-yard touchdown sprint around right end and Nutter booted the extra point for a 10-7 North edge.

Glenn still was not out of it, but failed to make a critical first down and the Raiders took over on their own 46-yard line. It was almost like an instant replay of the previous series with Goldstein making key third down plays in driving his troops 54 yards to a score. Goldstein put the game out of reach by again sprinting around right end the final 20 yards with 6:15 left in the game and Nutter's kick made it 17-7 to the delight of the partisan Raider fans.

Nutter, who formerly played tailback, was moved to fullback and responded with 36 yards gained in 10 carried. But it was senior quarterback Goldstein who was in command of the show.

To indicate North's varied attack, it picked up seven first downs rushing, five passing and one by penalty. Glenn's offense was mostly ground-oriented, gaining nine first downs rushing, two through the air and one by penalty.

The loss dropped Glenn's overall record to 3-4 and the Rockets face strong prospect of finishing with their losing season in many years. Glenn hosts strong Livonia Stevenson Friday night in another battle that will test the Rocket defense.

"Stevenson has a very fine team," Gordon said. "They have mostly a senior-laden team and their quarterback, Dave Hall, will really test our secondary with his passing. They are champions of the Interlakes League again this year and it will be another tough game," he said.

Gordon could have added that Stevenson has not lost an Interlakes League football league game since 1975 and carries a 6-1 record into Friday night's clash at Glenn's field at 8 p.m.

After viewing game films of Saturday's defeat, Gordon found some bright spots. He praised the play of junior offensive guard Keith Zimmerman and senior offensive tackle Gary Black. Defensively, junior linebacker Frank Iannello played another outstanding game and junior noseguard Dan Perkins again was all over the field making tackles.

"North Farmington has a really outstanding football team," Gordon assessed. "Coach Ron Holland always does a superb job and this year is another example of his fine work. We played well at times, especially during the first three quarters.

"But when we had a chance to drive in for an insurance touchdown, we fumbled at their 40-yard-line and they were the ones who capitalized by scoring two touchdowns."

Despite the seemingly strong defensive game, Gordon still found little to praise his defenders for. "We're making too many mistakes on defense," he pointed out. "We have people out of position that allows our opponents the big play. It seems we're especially vulnerable on third-down plays and on long passes." Gordon was especially disappointed that the defense let Raider quarterback Goldstein get loose for his two 20-yard touchdown runs.

Now sporting a 3-4 season record, Glenn must win both remaining games — against Stevenson at home and at Wayne Memorial — or suffer its first losing season in about six years.

Stevenson will be really tough and the season finale against the cross-town Zebras is always a head-banger that is played with great intensity and emotion.

If it's any consolation, two of Glenn's four losses this season have come at the hands of league champions — undefeated Reford Union, Northwest Suburban League champ, unbeaten Dearborn Edsel Ford, which should take the crown in the Suburban '8' Conference.

Wayne's kickoff specialty team quickly forms a wall of protection for Don Shumpert(4) during Friday night's Great Lakes Conference confrontation with visiting Monroe. The Zebras put on an excellent show for a Homecoming crowd that unfortunately went home disappointed. The Zebras dropped a 30-7 decision and will try to recover from a three-game losing spin at the expense of Wyandotte, their final league rivals for the 1979 campaign. (Story on first Sports page.)

Over 30 hockey begins 6th year

The Wayne-Westland Men's "Over 30" Hockey League launched its sixth season of competition recently, welcoming two new sponsors into the fold.

The newcomers are "The Jock Shop", nee Four Seasons Sports Shop, and Jake's Lounge of Wayne.

Jake's Lounge got off to a successful start by shutting out Extra Point Bar 5-0 in the opening game of the season. Norm Beasley and Larry Kaifesh scored two goals each and Tony Spada added a solo tally to back up Ron Mullendore's perfect goaltending.

In a game matching two of the league's top goaltenders, Tim Vanderburgh of Futurama Eng. and Don Smith of Brocks Homes, Vanderburgh came out with the victory by the narrowest of margins, 1-0. A goal by John Castellanos late in the third period was the difference in this duel.

Johnson Carbonic and Tastee Freez proved to be evenly matched as the two teams skated to a 4-4 tie in their first meeting of the campaign. Terry Carlez led the Freez' attack with a three-goal hat trick and Rod Dittmar accounted for the fourth goal; Nick Palise had a pair of goals for Carbonic. Teammates Ron Johnson and Ken Beal each scored one.

Cherry Hill, GC West clash

Winning season is at stake

By JIM BRADLEY
ANP Sports Writer

There were heroes galore in Cherry Hill's dramatic 8-6 victory over Taylor Kennedy Saturday afternoon as the Spartans scored in the last quarter to edge the Eagles and raise their record to 3-3 in the Tri-River League and 3-4 overall.

Running back Randy Frederick, who rushed for more than 100 yards for the third consecutive game, was one of the most outstanding players in the game.

His 55-yard kickoff return immediately after Kennedy's third quarter touchdown set up the Spartans winning touchdown. He rambled 101 yards in 19 carries and fullback Mike Johnson, who had three consecutive 100-yard games earlier in the season, gained 45 yards in only 9 tries.

Johnson plunged the final two yards to tie the score and then Coach Jerry Pawloski called on Johnson again for the two-point conversion and Johnson exploded over the goal line behind brilliant blocking by his teammates.

Now Cherry Hill gets ready to invade Garden City West at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the final Tri-River encounter. The possessor of two straight wins, the Spartans and Pawloski have an excellent opportunity to finish with a winning season.

"Garden City West has the identical record we have, 3-3 in the league and 3-4 overall," Pawloski said. "They have a real good defense and while they haven't put too many points on the scoreboard, they are capable of moving the ball."

West's Tigers are led by left-handed quarterback Tom Minor, an outstanding all-around athlete at Garden City West. In addition, Coach Mike Copeland's defense is among the toughest in the league and has done a good job all year.

Friday night's clash looks like a real exciting match-up between two teams fighting to finish with winning ledgers this year.

But right now, Coach Pawloski and his minions are savoring their come-from-behind triumph over Taylor Kennedy Saturday.

As said, there were heroes galore.

In addition to Frederick and Johnson, quarterback Aaron Gregory played an outstanding game both ways. The senior signal-caller completed four of seven passes for 85 yards and ran twice for 25 yards in key situations.

third period to build-up its lead, 17-7. The Trojans put the game out of reach with a pair of fourth quarter touchdowns. One of those was a 62-yard pass play from Demarco to Lay; the second came after Covault was intercepted on the Zebra 31-yard line. Six plays later Bryan Hartwood dove into the end zone from the two for the final score of the game.

"Except for a couple of defensive lapses," Carter pointed out, "I felt we played well, in fact, I'm really proud of our kids. This Demarco kid had been hurt and wasn't in their line-up for the past two games. I consider him as one of the best, if not the premier quarterback in our league this year.

"As evidenced by the stats, they didn't push us around and the score is not indicative of what kind of battle it really was out there."

Wayne had a definite edge in first downs and rushing yardage 13 to 9 and 150 to 29, but the Trojans won the duel of the air routes as Demarco connected on 9 of 13 passes for 165 yards.

Covault hit on four of seven (with two intercepted) for 47 yards.

Rich Rogers led the Wayne rushers with 92 yards for his 17 carries and Bill Wilson, a defensive tackle, counted nine tackles, while Dave McCahill had eight and blocked an extra point attempt to lead the Zebra defensive corps. Bruce Rize, with eight solos.

Wayne will attempt to put the brakes on to its skid Friday night, clashing with Wyandotte at home.

Wayne cagers fall in last 9 seconds

Wayne Memorial will begin the second round of play in the Great Lakes 8 Conference girls' basketball circuit this week hoping that "lady luck" doesn't play any more tricks on them.

Coach Steve Schwartz' cagers dropped a heartbreaking 47-44 decision to Monroe, one of the title contenders. And that loss hurt, says Schwartz.

"We led until the final nine seconds of the game and that's a good reason why this loss hurt so much," the Wayne coach pointed out.

Monroe went ahead 45-44 on Jill Kregel's baseline jump shot and the Zebras didn't have enough time to reply.

Wayne looked as if it was going to blow the Trojans back to Greece as it built up a 30-16 halftime lead, but mistakes and poor shooting enabled Monroe to narrow the gap.

Wayne was successful on eight of 14 free throws, but went to the line only once in the second half.

Peggy Stevens sank 16 points, scoring 14 of those in the first half, to lead the Zebras. Cindy Dunn chipped in with 12.

Schwartz' cagers took out their frustrations on Wyandotte, 54-28, for their fifth conference victory in seven starts. Theresa Callagari paced the assault with 16 points while Miss Stevens and Dunn split 20 points between them.

Deanna Leverenz came off the bench and scored eight points in the second half.

Zebras end tennis season

With a flock of juniors returning to his tennis squad a year from now, Wayne Memorial Coach Jack Armstrong is optimistic about the Zebras' chances in the Great Lakes 8 Conference.

"We didn't have the experience this year to realistically compete against the perennial league powers - Fordson and Monroe," Armstrong pointed out after Wayne dropped the season's league finale to Wyandotte, 6-1.

"Next year we're going to have a host of outstanding young players returning off of this year's squad to make up our line-up. And I am confident that we will be very much improved."

Some of those players who will be returning are Bonnie Lamb, Debbie Gorshek, Barb Brown and Carrie Czarnoowski.

Miss Gorshek contributed the lone point in the loss to Wyandotte.

"I feel satisfied that we played up to our potential this year," Armstrong added.

Wayne finished the season with a 6-8 over-all record.

HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE IS A KILLER!

... AND A DANGER SIGNAL ...

WHAT IS BLOOD PRESSURE?

Blood pressure is the force exerted on the artery walls as the heart pumps blood through them. The blood in our circulatory system is always under pressure somewhat like water in the pipes of a water system; the height of this pressure of the blood depends on the strength and rate of the heart's contraction, the amount of blood in the circulatory system and the elasticity of the arteries carrying the blood. In all of us this varies from minute to minute, going up when we are tense or excited, going down when we are relaxed.

WHAT IS HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE?

However, blood pressure goes up too high in some persons and stays that way. This is called "high blood pressure," also known as hypertension. An estimated 25 million Americans suffer from hypertension; between four and five out of a hundred must restrict their activities to some degree because of it.

High blood pressure in itself is not a disease; it is a danger signal that something is wrong. If high blood pressure is allowed to go untreated, it may become a major health problem resulting in damage to the heart, kidneys or other organs.

SYMPTOMS OF HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

High blood pressure may be indicated in many ways:
Shortness of breath;
Dizziness when posture is changed;
Ringing in the ears.
Any of these symptoms should be taken seriously. Unfortunately, high blood pressure may go undetected for years because in its early stages there may be no symptoms to cause people to seek treatment. This is one of the most important reasons for having a regular chiropractic examination.

VERTEBRAL SUBLUXATION
(NERVE INTERFERENCE)

HOW CAN CHIROPRACTIC HELP?

For blood pressure to remain normal (which varies from one individual to another), the heart must pump a certain, definite amount of blood per minutes, the kidneys must be eliminating properly and the arteries and blood vessels must be able to accommodate this flow of blood.

Coordinating these organs, muscles and cells of the body is the brain. The brain produces electrical impulses of energy constantly, sending these "messages" to various parts of the body through the spinal column.

The spinal column consists of 26 bone segments called vertebrae, sacrum and coccyx. The great nerve trunks transmit the vital nerve impulses from the opening between the vertebrae to the intended parts of the body.

If a misalignment, or subluxation, should occur somewhere in the spinal column, an abnormal supply of nerve energy may result; such a distortion, creating a change in the amount of force exerted on the arteries or blood vessels, may produce high blood pressure.

The chiropractor has been trained to locate subluxations and to relieve pressure by correcting the subluxated vertebrae. Chiropractic adjustments restore normal energy impulses, permitting the organs, muscles and cells of the body to resume normal function.

Belleville, Bentley: Who'll dwell in cellar?

Both teams are looking for first win in last league game

When they meet Friday night Belleville and Livonia Bentley will decide which team will inhabit the cellar of the Suburban 8 Conference for the coming year.

Though Bentley has stashed away one win at the expense of out of league rival,Plymouth Canton, Belleville is yet to present their rookie coach Mike Colletta with his first victory.

The Tigers came close last week when they dropped a 13-7 decision to undefeated Marysville, an out-of-league Homecoming visitor.

"Bentley is a better team than its record(1-6) indicates," Colletta pointed out. "They beat Canton and came close to defeating Walled Lake. I feel that both teams are hungry for victory, so it'll be an excellent game."

Mistakes led to the Tigers' demise against Marysville, an unranked Class B team which is boasting a perfect 7-0 record.

"We just made too many mistakes against them," Colletta said, "and we also gave up the big plays that resulted in touchdowns."

One of those 'big plays' Colletta referred to was a 65-yard touchdown run pulled off by Marysville's quarterback, Bill Farnsworth. That came midway in the first quarter and the visitors never relinquished the lead.

The winners made it a 13-0 game when Jeff Vollsteadt scored from the three in the second quarter. Again it was a Belleville miscue that set up the scoring situation. The Tiger defense held at the four, then Marysville was slapped with a 15 yard penalty, pushing them back to the 19. But on the next play they pulled off a reverse and was back knocking at the touchdown gates.

In the closing minutes of the first half Belleville got on the scoreboard thanks to Barry Riddick's 49-yard run. Jim Krause kicked the extra point and the two teams separated at halftime to discuss a 13-7 score.

Belleville managed to penetrate within the Marysville 20-yard line on two separate occasions but failed to capitalize. On one of those occasions quarterback Mike Sampson broke loose for a 44-yard run, but he was intercepted on the next play to erase the threat.

Belleville picked up seven first downs and 179 yards rushing. Rick Winekoff contributed 85 of those yards on 13 tries. Riddick chipped in with 68 on 10 tries.

Belleville defense looked good thanks to Stamper, who was outstanding as an end, and Jeff Patterson, who recovered one of two(Stamper got the other) Marysville fumbles.

Sampson made good on two of nine passes for 16 yards and two of his aerials were intercepted. Both teams were slapped with five penalties, but it cost Marysville more(45 yards to the Tigers' 25).

If the Tigers don't do it this week - the odds of breaking their losing streak the following Friday are greatly stacked against them. After Bentley comes Ypsilanti whom Colletta labeled "as awesome this year."

Winning season at stake in Cherry Hill, West duel

Gregory was especially in command during the winning touchdown drive that covered 35 yards. However, just before Cherry Hill's winning march, Kennedy broke a scoreless deadlock by driving 55 yards and scoring on a two-yard plunge.

That's when Randy Frederick electrified the crowd with his dazzling 55-yard sprint on the ensuing kickoff before he was finally brought down on the Eagle 35-yard line. With Gregory at the controls, the Spartans marched inexorably to paydirt. Key play in the drive was a bootleg pass play from Gregory to tight end Rick Boehm that gave the host squad a first down on Kennedy's seven-yard line.

A couple plays later, Johnson plowed two-yards to tie the score at 6-6. One of Coach pawloski's assistants in the press box, Joe LaScola, told Pawloski the same off-tackle plunge would be successful for the two-point conversion — and it was!

Cherry Hill's second straight win — they beat Riverside 28-0 the previous week at Homecoming — puts them in great shape to finish with a winning season. But Garden City West and Clarenceville at home the following week will put the Spartans to the test.

Saturday's heroes in Cherry Hill's satisfying victory were numerous. Pawloski gave great credit to the offensive line. He praised tackles Tom Teasdale and Jeff Hannenberg, guards John Martin and Barry Long and center Gary Bilek for playing outstanding games.

Defensive stalwarts Dan Gaskins, Aaron Gregory, Gerald Lee and Jeff Searcy were singled out for their performances. Gaskins, a defensive end, led the unit with 11 solo tackles, 5 assists and one quarterback sack.

Gregory, who played defensive safety and moved up close behind the line, made nine solo tackles and assisted on 5 others.

Lee, a defensive end, stopped seven Kennedy ball-carriers, helped on another and sacked the Eagle signal-caller once.

Defensive noseman Searcy was also instrumental in the win, making four solo tackles, helping on 4 other stops and recovering a Kennedy fumble.

"It was a great team effort" a jubilant Pawloski said after the game, "and now we look forward to our always tough games against our arch-rival, Garden City West, Friday night."

came up with four third period goals to take a 6-5 decision from Jack's Sporting Goods. John Clearwood scored three goals and was tops for the winners with Jerry Grube, Dan Droz and Dennis Broge each checking in with one. Vern Springer had a pair of goals for the losers and the other two tallies went to Ron Wojewski and Jack Lanthier.

Futurama Eng. remained undefeated with a tough 4-2 victory over Jake's Lounge as Chuck Jennett scored his second goal of the night with two minutes left in the game to break the deadlock for good. Dave Frankling and John Castellanos also scored for the winners. Dennis McCormick and Norm Beasley carded the loser's goals.

Ron Johnson's hat trick provided the impetus of Johnson Carbonic's 4-3 victory over Jack's Sports Center. Jim Thomas scored the final and decisive goal for the winners. Ray Erickson, John Colligan and Mike Adamson scored for the losers.

Jock Shop came up with two goals late in the third period to snatch a thrilling 3-2 decision from tastee Freez. Two goals by Grube which included the winning goal, and one by Droz accounted for the winner's scores. Ralph tack and Mo Paquette scored for the losers.

Three first period goals by Brock Homes proved too much for Extra Point who was edged 4-3. Zajac's two goals led the winning assault while Don Middaugh and Tom Dilaura added single tallies. Mel Sceloff's two goals and Dave Fishwich's tally accounted for Extra Point's scoring.

Games in the Over 30 League are scheduled for Sunday nights at the Wayne Arena, Howe and Annapolis rds., and at the Westland Rink, Wildwood and Hunter. There is no admission charge.

The next round of action(October 28) will pit Brock Homes against the Jock Shop at 6:30 p.m. and Johnson Carbonic vs. Jake's at 8 p.m. Both games will be played at the Westland Rink.

Over at Wayne, Extra Point takes on Jack's at 9 p.m. and the nightcap will feature Tastee Freez and Futurama Eng. at 10:30 p.m.

Vikings

kept pressure on the hosts who failed to penetrate beyond the Viking 35-yard line the first three quarters of the game. Some of the reasons why the Bulldogs were impotent offensively were the performances turned in by Earl Taylor, a linebacker who blocked a punt and got a safety out of it; Jones, a middle linebacker, collected nine solo and an equal number of assists and recovered a fumble. Hughley was also a standout on defense as he teamed with Stephenson in the secondary to neutralize the Bulldogs' aerial attack.

Coach James hopes the momentum of the victory will carry over to Friday's game with a 5-2 Clarenceville team. It's the Vikings' Homecoming and he knows what it's like to disappoint a crowd of alumni and fans gathered for such occasions.

Meanwhile Robichaud will try to recover from its shell-shock Friday afternoon when Saginaw MacArthur, a nonleague rival, invades Dearborn Heights.

Economy will affect home care

Most families today are doing a good job in taking care of their aged members, however, changing economic and social conditions will make the task more difficult in the future.

This prediction was voiced by Dr. Barbara Silverstone at the "Aging Family and Caring Community" conference held recently at Mercy College of Detroit.

"We have learned through research surveys that the majority of persons over 65 are doing quite well. They are able to live independently and take care of themselves," said Dr. Silverstone, the director of the Benjamin Rose Institute in Cleveland. She added that approximately 80 percent of the aged population in this country is managing with the assistance of members of their own families.

"There is between the generations a great deal of socialization and exchange of affection, as well as an exchange of goods and services, all voluntarily," Dr. Silverstone said.

She labeled as "myth" the belief that oldsters fared better in past generations, saying that very few in those days lived to old age, and often those who did were catered to by relatives who sought to inherit their money or property.

"Today, much more voluntarism exists between generations in terms of their relationships because for the most part older persons are economically independent from their children. It is not true that older people are rejected and disliked, or that there's a lot of friction between the generations," she said.

The coming decades, however, will see a marked change in terms of intergenerational relationships, Dr. Silverstone noted.

"I believe we are going to see more problems emerging in terms of family caring. One reason is that many more persons are living into the later years, namely over 85. In the future we will see an increase in chronic disabling illness in that age group. With the high likelihood of disability goes the need for a greater degree of personal care, almost on a one-to-one basis," she noted.

The present pattern of smaller-size families also will affect the care of the elderly, since parents with fewer children will have fewer persons directly interested in their personal welfare.

"In the long run, as we look ahead to the year 2000 and after, we are going to see a thinning family structure and families simply will not have the resources to provide 80 percent of the care, as they do now," Dr. Silverstone said. "Also, the fact that 50 percent of women with children are working has to be considered.

"If women are not staying home to care directly for their children all the time, they certainly are not going to stay home to care for an older member of their families."

Part of the solution to the problem, according to Dr. Silverstone, is to make people aware of the roles other than care-giver they can fill towards their elderly relatives. These include being advocators, planners, financial advisors, shoppers, confidantes and friends.

Consumerism also will play a part in the delivery of support services to the aged, in Dr. Silverstone's opinion. Today's better-educated consumers, as they grow older, will demand sufficient and quality services for themselves.

"Families must tap the formal support system to obtain respite services, such as day care, homemaker care, temporary nursing home care, perhaps even financial aid. This linkage with the formal system is a crucial one — it is the right of families to have it," she said.

Dr. Silverstone pointed out that better care of the aged in the future depends, too, on training of qualified personnel.

Leader Dogs seeks canines

Want to send your dog to school? Leader Dogs for the Blind needs one-year-old German Shepherds, Labrador and Golden Retrievers.

Leader Dog, the largest producing school of its kind in the world, trains friendly dogs to be assigned to blind people, free of charge. The dogs are trained for four months prior to being assigned to the individual who will train the fifth month with their new leader.

The Rochester school depends upon contributions of eligible dogs (friendly, healthy and intelligent) for its training material. No dogs are purchased. Leader Dog maintains a constant training program, winter and summer, good weather and bad. It is necessary to have at least 200 dogs, preferrably more, on hand at all times.

The Leader Dogs School maintains a puppy program that produces approximately 40 percent of the training stock, so 60 percent of the dogs used must come from families who no longer have need for a big dog in the house.

Leader Dogs receive the best of care during their 5-month training period. Upon graduation a Leader Dog has total dedication, tender loving care, from the person who depends upon him for safe

Look up for fall star show

As the summer constellations give way to the star patterns of autumn, the Great Bear, Ursa Major—often called the Big Dipper—lies low in the north of the October sky, said University of Michigan astronomer Richard G. Teske.

"During this season the dipper is upright, as if holding water," noted Prof. Teske. "It famous pointer stars at the front of the bowl direct our gaze upwards towards the North Star."

Although the seven stars of the dipper have known other names in many legends, this figure has almost universally been identified with a bear, from the civilizations of Greek and Roman times to certain tribes of American Indians.

"Writers have often commented upon the difficulty of imagining the outline of a bear in connection with the constellation," he added. "The humorist Will Cuppy is said to have suggested that perhaps the Great Bear received its name at some distant and forgotten time in the past, when bears resembled dippers more than they do today."

Because the stars that make up the constellation are scattered at different distances from the sun, only by chance are they seen in the form of a dipper, Teske said.

"Five of the stars—excluding the one at the tip of the bowl and the one at the tip of the handle—are members of a sparse cluster of about 17 stars that lies about 75 light years away. Called the Ursa Major cluster, it is the closest star cluster to our sun, with the next closest about twice as far off in space."

Moving together with the Ursa Major cluster is a number of bright stars and many fainter ones that are scattered over the entire sky, Teske pointed out.

'Astronomers will be searching for new satellites...'

"This larger grouping, called the Ursa Major Stream, occupies a volume of space that completely envelops the region of the sun, which is why the members surround us in all parts of the sky," he explained. "They are streaming past the sun at nine miles per second, quite a slow speed for stars."

This month, noted the U-M astronomer, the planet Venus returns to the western sky as the evening "star."

"Sky watchers may want to see how soon after the middle of the month they can find Venus in the twilight sky, above the horizon just to the left of the sunset point. "During the coming winter months, the bright cloud-covered planet will climb gradually higher in evening skies as it slowly catches up with earth in its orbit about the sun."

In the morning sky Mars can be seen high in the southeast, with Jupiter and Saturn lying along a line below it and to its left.

"On Oct. 27, the earth will move through the plane of Saturn's remarkable rings. Only a few miles thick, they are the thinnest-known natural structure in the solar system," he explained. When viewed edge-on from earth, as they ill be at this time, the rings ought to disappear from sight.

After the 27th, until next summer, the earth and sun will be on opposite sides of the plane of the rings, bringing into view the rings' dark, unilluminated side. The rings will be faint or unobservable in small telescopes, and the planet will be fainter than usual in our skies.

Teske said: "Astronomers will be searching for possible new satellites of Saturn during this period, when the bright gleam of the rings will not interfere with their sensitive photographic hunt.

"As Pioneer 11 sped by Saturn a month ago, the spacecraft gathered evidence that an undiscovered moon might exist, and astronomers will be trying to locate the moon.

"The most recent satellite of Saturn to be discovered," Teske noted, "Was 180-mile-wide Janus, found by a French astronomer when the rings were edge-on to the earth in Dec. 1966."

Only 54 days come November

Come the end of October, there will be just 54 days before Christmas. Fifty-four days may seem like an eternity to some people, but to others it may appear like the week after next.

This is the period — in autumn and fall — when gift, card, specialty shops and department stores display albums of "personalized" Christmas greeting cards. It is from these albums that an individual can select the greeting of her — or his — choice.

"Personalized" greeting cards are the type in which the name of the sender is imprinted and the return address often printed on the envelope. For many persons, the imprinting of one's name and address is a social cachet, the greeting often enhanced with a personal note or signature.

Informality may be the keynote for many persons who send Christmas greetings. For those who seek the more formal aspect of the "personalized" greeting, here are some guidelines as compiled by the National Association of Greeting Card Publishers.

When titles are used, the husband's name appears first: Mr. and Mrs. James Duggan; Doctor and Mrs. James Duggan; Judge and Mrs. James Duggan; Colonel and Mrs. James Duggan. Without titles, either name may come first: Helen and James Duggan or James and Helen Duggan.

A father's name appears first when children's names are added: The Duggans — James, Helen, Robbie and Jane; James, Helen and the Children; The James Duggan Family; Mr. and Mrs. James Duggan and Family.

Most often for a single person, woman or man, informality is the rule: Helen Trent or Richard Scott. A widowed or married woman uses her husband's name first: Mrs. Norman Woods; a divorced woman uses her first name first: Mrs. Helen Woods.

Some people tend to add an apostrophe "s" to last names to make them plural. For instance: The Bennett's. Use of the apostrophe is incorrect. Simply add an "s", or "es". The name Loomis, for instance, becomes The Loomises.

Titles are always spelled out: Doctor, Captain, Lieutenant. Officers of the Army, Marines and Air Force use title with grade of Captain and above. Officers of the Navy use title with the grade of Lieutenant Commander or above. In all services, officers of junior rank use "Mr." with the grade and organization on a second line: Mr. James Duggan, Second Lieutenant, U.S. Marine Corps.

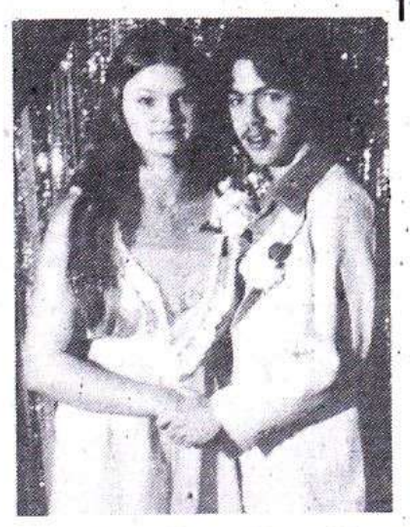
Garlick, Taylor to wed

Thomas and Alita Garlick of 43705 Harris Rd., Belleville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Toni Lynn Garlick, and Scott T. Taylor, the son of Mrs. Cynthia Ashley of 38008 Palmer Hwy., Britton, and William Taylor of 10824 Quirk Rd., Belleville. An employee of Unistrut Corp. in Wayne, the bride-elect graduated from Belleville High School in 1979. Her fiance is currently in his senior year at Britton-Macon High School in Britton. As yet no date has been set for the wedding.



School sets celebration

A special program has been planned for Nov. 4 in celebration of the 25th anniversary of St. Anthony's School dedication.

The 12 noon mass that day will be for all school alumni and their families followed by a program by the school children at 3 p.m. and open house at 3:45.

All those who attended St. Anthony's School are invited to come and greet old friends and teachers.

A surefire recipe (for working myself right off the map—wiping myself out) is: two gallons hot water, a squirt of liquid detergent, a splash of piney-smelling cleaner and a handful of Spic and Span. Combine in a pail, pan or plastic waste basket with one extra soft rag (old cotton terry towel, preferably.)

I don't know what there is about that formula but once it's together that white tornado, janitor in a drum and Mr. Clean had better stand aside! A mixture of hot sudsy water can pull me out of my lethargy and convert me from model-T to turbo everytime.

It was the dinginess of my window sills (that no-man's land 'tween panes and screens) that prompted the last day-long bucket-binge. Twenty windows sills and frames later and during a pit stop for the pail, what should I spy but those awful fingerprints (that you see only at certain angles) on the 'fridge, range, dishwasher — those lint-filled crevices on the washer and dryer, the film on the step-stool, the fogginess of the kitchen chandelier and oh, my gosh, how did those small appliances get so tacky!

Cupboards not looking too hot either and holy mackerel what got spilled in that drawer! Lord, it's been a long time since I looked under that sink, where did all that gook come from? Hm-m-m, the pantry used to have gold and white checked contact on the shelves; when did I change to grey? And, whew, just look at the grubbiness of those Tupperwear containers and that big can of flour — and those apothecary jars and the drips on the cooking oil and molasses bottles.

Another refill took care of the porch — deck chairs, tables, plant holders, ashtrays, light fixtures. Around the corner and in the garage for those sets of instruments with which we spend so much time — our golf clubs. Attacking those woods, irons and the bags themselves called for an S.O.S. (a little extra help) for all that green-grass buildup. The golf cart! Aha — (ho-ho) that was like tackling an automobile. DIR-TY!

Our garage door — good heavens, every creature in Bugville must have been on a collision course this summer. More outdoor lights, more patio furniture plus a couple entry doors that'd lost their original patinas.

More hot water and more suds and it was basement time — that poor neglected freezer and the fruit cellar shelves and the water heater and the softener and those cob-webby little windows and . . . . .

Suddenly, (what happened to the day) there was BG — and can you believe he wouldn't let me give his Hushpuppies or his briefcase a little hot, sudsy water treatment? Or that he insisted his dinner came before my challenging the crawlspace? Sorehead!!

HERE'S ANOTHER ONE FOR YOU: "Two shakes of a lamb's tale" — where did that pop up? And why a LAMB? Because that impatient creature shakes a brisk tail far more swiftly than her animal companions. For the tranquil cow calmly sweeps hers and — as any farmer can verify — the pig turns a curlicued tail (not having enough of one TO shake!)

But why "shake"? Because old-time gamblers, when urged to bet quickly, would swear to be done in "Two shakes" of the dice cup. And "two shakes" given to the "lamb's tail", added up to uniquely American dialect for getting something done in no time at all. So, there's a bit of history in "two shakes" of the pen!

'Tis that time of year again, folks.

Not only is the frost on the pumpkin and all its hard-shelled kinfolk as well but all the other harvest crops are in and giving those church groups (ladies aids, altar societies, UMW's, ECW's, etc) reason for utilizing them in some shape or form.

And what better way than the fall "church supper"? If you've never taken advantage of one of the many that crop up throughout the year (but mainly in the fall) you're missing a most enjoyable dining experience.

One of the good ones, alas, was held last week at the First United Methodist Church, kicking off the bazaar-dinner activities in the area.

This week you could head out to Denton and Faith United Methodist Church where you'll find real home cooking and family style servings of all your garden favorites and turkey, to boot.

We've been to this one time and again and highly recommend it but, with the gas situation we'll be checking out something a wee bit closer these days. All the details on dining in Denton, and elsewhere, by the way, may be found in the "It's a date" column.

You'll be amazed at what you get for your money. Last week here in our new hometown we gave St. Elizabeth's Roast Beef Dinner a try and — wanna know what we got for $3.75? — thick slices of roast beef, mashed potatoes and gravy (the real thing), squash, green beans, cole slaw, rolls, beverages and a choice of homemade desserts. Now, how can you beat that? It's the ideal (economical) way to eat out with the kids.

Just keep watching that events calendar and you'll see not only harvest meals but potato pancake and regular pancake suppers as well. It's a good way to treat your family (and yourself) to some good home-cooking, (someone else's!)

If you've not been near the Belleville Library of late, you're missing one of autumn's final gracious gestures — its gift to us of late October color. And, in this instance, it's the wall of brilliant burning bushes along the north side. We're the lucky ones; we have a view of them from our office.

— — — —

One of the most delightful performances we've ever had the pleasure of seeing and hearing was last week's "Moscow Pops", the Nekrasov Russian Folk Orchestra, at Ann Arbor's Hill Auditorium. Not really knowing what lay in store for us, it was a pleasant change to see the entire ensemble wearing native embroidered tunics.

But it was the instruments that were truly fascinating — 42 strings including balalaikas in sizes and shapes we'd never before seen, two harp-like but horizontal instruments, a gusli (type of zither), a mere four woodwinds, four concertina-accordion-like instruments and three sets of percussion instruments and numerous "sound effects" items.

That should give you a mental picture of what we viewed but, oh, how can I possibly make you imagine the MUSIC in your minds? From rousingly furious to depressingly mournful, it made you want to twirl madly or sob openly.

Three stars of the Bolshoi Opera were most skillful at setting moods with their deeply soulful then teasingly gay folk songs.

The biggest surprise of the evening, tho, was in realizing that our stereotyped notion of a somber, humorless Russian people was sorely inaccurate.

During a 10-minute standing ovation, the ensemble began its encore with the notes of "Clementine" (plunked out on "xylophone") then blended into an entirely American medley of "Oh Susanna" (complete with banjo) and "This Land is Your Land". We were amazed to find ourselves clapping along to an old-fashioned hoedown with the artists beaming from ear to ear as they gleefully plunked western-style strings and squeezed keyboard accordions.

A most stirring and moving performance, I think we'll always remember those softly strummed balalaikas which can actually sound like human humming (or wind in the trees) or the same strings being furiously attacked as in the opening and richly folksy number, "Shining Moon".

It was a most exciting performance and one that completely captivated the audience. (And one you'd have LOVED (and probably have sung along to) Valter, mine Russian friend.)

First Baptist Church scene of Walker-Chadwick wedding

Arrangements of carnations, mums and lilies adorned the altar of the First Baptist Church of Romulus Sept. 22 as Merel Irene Chadwick and Robert James Walker exchanged wedding bands and nuptial vows.

The Rev. Charles Woolridge presided at the six o'clock ceremony which joined the daughter of Theresa and Burl Chadwick of 11090 Delano St., Romulus, and the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Walker of 2312 Shreve St., Montgomery, Ala. in holy matrimony.

Music for the occasion was played by Johthan Walker and sung by Byron Thomas and Mary Carter.

Some 250 relatives and friends saw the bride given in marriage by her brother, Warren Chadwick of Detroit. For her wedding day Merel chose to wear a formal-length gown of Chantilly lace with a pleated chapel train. Her little fitted bodice was designed with a Queen Anne collar and long clear sleeves both embellished with lace appliques.

A beaded cap secured her fingertip veil of silk illusion which was banded in lace and a bouquet of roses tipped in apricot and rust with baby's breath interspersed completed her bridal finery.

An appricot-colored polyester gown with a pleated skirt, spaghetti strap bodice and companion cape was worn by the maid of honor, Trudy Vaughn of Belleville.

Appearing in identical frocks in shades of rust were the bridesmaids: Arelia Pendergrass of Romulus; Sharon Williams of Inkster; Debra Hancock of Romulus; Kimberely Austin of Ann Arbor, the bride's niece; Jessie Smith of Detroit; Sandra Rich of Wayne and Evette Green of Westland.

All eight attendants tucked sprigs of baby's breath in their hair and carried bouquets of apricot and rust colored carnations accented with baby's breath.

Youngsters in the wedding party included Todd Chadwick, nine; Gamel Neal, five; Erika Neal, three, and Lisa Smith, seven. The flowergirls wore little rust-colored frocks topped by pinafores in an apricot and rust print.

The bridegroom chose his brother, Willie Walker of Montgomery, Ala., to serve as best man. Others on the esquire side were Kevin, Keith, Alred and Harold Chadwick, all brothers of the bride from Romulus; Craig Green and Bruce Donalds of Romulus, and David Austin of Detroit, the bride's nephew.

At the Knights of Columbus hall in Wayne where the reception was held, the bride's mother received some 200 guests in a floor-length gown of apricot chiffon to which she pinned her corsage of apricot and rust carnations. A similar corsage was presented to the bridegroom's mother who donned a calf-length gown of rust chiffon. Mrs. Zeobia Jones of Romulus served as director of the wedding.

Since returning from a week-long honeymoon in Atlanta and Montgomery, Ala., the newlyweds took up residence at 40482 Tamarack Dr., No. 103, Canton.

The bride graduated from Romulus High School and Wayne County Community College and is now working at Detroit Diesel Allison Division of General Motors in Romulus. Her husband, who holds electrical and pipe fitting certificates, is employed at Halimon Contracting Service in Romulus.

The rehearsal dinner, given by the bride's parents, was held at their home on Delano Street.

Gordons feted at open house

Fifty years of marriage for Virgil and Myrtie Gordon of Van Born Road, Romulus, were celebrated Sept. 18 when some 100 relatives and friends gathered to wish them well.

Married on Sept. 16, 1929 in the parsonage of the former First Baptist Church in Wayne, the couple was honored by their children — Fran Whited and Don and Pat Gordon all of Westland, Mel and Charlotte Gordon of California and Jack Gordon of Romulus. Eight grandchildren were also part of the festivities.

Held in the Fellowship Hall of the Westland Free Methodist Church, the party featured a montage of family pictures taken over the 50 years of the Gordon's marriage. An anniversary cake topped with a blown glass heart ornament, which had topped the wedding cake at their granddaughter's wedding in 1978, was also another focal point at the reception.

The punch table was centered with an arrangement of gold mums and daisies while crystal bud vases containing gold roses flanked the cake.

Mrs. Gordon has been active in her church for many years, serving in various capacities. Her husband retired from the Wayne County Road Commission in 1964 after 38 years of service. He, too, is active in the Westland Free Methodist Church and is a member of the senior citizens bowling league in Westland.

Schroder brothers reach 3.8 million in home marketing

Two former Belleville men, Tom Schroeder and Jeff Schroeder, who followed their mother, Dorothy Schroeder, into the real estate business, have now registered $3.8 million in home sales for their firm, The Marketplace, in Sacramento, Calif.

The third quarter of this year accounted for the sale of 45 new homes which resulted in the above total. Specializing in new home sales and marketing, the firm has represented four projects thus far this year with a total of 115 sales and a volume of $9,700,000.

Tom Schroeder is president of the firm and Jeff Schroeder oversees a staff of five agents in his position of vice-president and general sales manager.

Founded 2½ years ago, the business is based on providing full service marketing for Schroeder's builder clients. Tom Schroeder is also owner of a Better Homes Realty franchise in Orangevale, Calif., which, in addition to offering general brokerage services, handles the sales of existing homes for the buyers of new homes for Marketplace clients.

The two men are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schroeder of Belleville. Their mother owns and operates D. R. Schroeder Realtor.

October...That's 'my month'

By KAY DeBORD

The golden days of late September and early October are "my days" and I think it's pretty generous of me to share them with all the rest of you people.

"My days" bring out the best in me. I smile at strangers — and some smile back. I find ambition to do things that I have been procrastinating about doing (but, I don't get carried away!), and I find all kinds of excuses to call people, just because I feel good.

(The man of the house isn't too enthused when he gets the list of long distance calls with the phone bill!)

Whatever it is that happens to me about this time of year, I wish I could bottle it to take when the wet, clammy days of November are at hand, or the deep chill days of winter. It's more enervating than "spring fever" but there's the same euphoria in each day.

Those among us who are devotees of the hot summer, despite; the humidity and thunderstorms, have little understanding of what this time of year does to a person like me — just as I consider their case pathetic.

It would be nice to have an October birthday. There's none in the family, but with an unusual lack of consideration on her part, my late mother managed to bear me in March.

And October would be perfect for celebrating a wedding anniversary, but for some reason we chose a January date to marry, then four years later, our first child made a January debut, and the second was equally mismanaged and arrived in November a couple years later.

And none of the grandchildren arrived in the world in "my month." Even my sons-in-law managed to have birthdays in September and December! And our schnauzer is the product of a December litter.

Maybe I will be like England's royalty and pick my own month to celebrate. Queen Elizabeth's "official" birthday is in June to take advantage of nicer weather. I understand that October isn't all that good in England, otherwise she may have picked "my month."

I wonder if there's a "club" for lovers of the month of October?

Of course, if we have a rainy, gray October, I will be sure to hear from ungenerous readers who are fanciers of hot summer, cold winter and drizzly spring — but, I will be staunch and stand by "my month" to the last fallen leaf.

Sargent exhibit revive turn of century lifestyle

Turn of the century elegance has come to vivid life in the exhibition "John Singer Sargent and the Edwardian Age", which opened at the Detroit Institute of Arts Oct. 17.

The exhibit will be open through Dec. 9.

This is the exclusive North American showing of some 100 portraits, drawings and watercolors by the favorite artist of high society. The exhibition was organized jointly by the Detroit Institute of Arts and by the Leeds Art Galleries and London's National Portrait Gallery in England.

The exhibition includes resplendent full-length portraits, many of them lent from English country houses and not seen publicly for more than half a century. Sargent (1856-1925) was the chronicler of late Victorian and Edwardian society. Rodin called him "The Van Dyck of our times."

The son of expatriate American parents, John Singer Sargent was born in Italy, learned his dazzling technique in the atelier of Carolus-Duran in Paris and cultivated his powers of characterization to the point where his sitters appear as real individuals rather than social stereotypes, despite their luxurious clothes and surroundings.

The early portraits he painted in France are subtle and sensitive. The impact of impressionism, and of his friendship with Claude Monet in particular, can be traced in the vibrant landscapes and figure sketches done first in France and then in England during the 1880s.

Toward 1900, Sargent's patrons became increasingly aristocratic and he turned to Van Dyck and Reynolds for inspiration. His portraits of "The Acheson Sisters" and "A.J. Balfour" are in the great tradition of European portraiture, but his daring interpretation of the notorious Mme. Gautreau, well known to society despite the title "Madame X", created such shock waves in France that he decided to leave Paris and relocate in London. His popularity never again dwindled.

He was sought out by the world of high society, as well as the vibrant literary and theatrical personalities of this lively era. Sargent was a man of prodigious energy and, at the height of his career, was painting as many as 20 formal portraits a year.

Among the masterpieces in the exhibition are "Mrs. Carl Meyer and her Children" lent by Sir Anthony Meyer of London; "Edouard Pailleron" from the Musee National, Versailles; and "The Daughters of Edward D. Boit" from the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

Portrait sketches include "Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon" (now Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother), Winston Churchill (in 1925 as Chancellor of the Exchequer) and, the symbol of the entire Edwardian Age, "Edward VII on his Death-Bed" (1910).

This first international exhibition of John Singer Sargent's figurative work is underwritten in Detroit by the Founders Society Detroit Institute of Arts and supported in part by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts and by a federal indemnity from the Federal Council on the Arts and the Humanities.

The exhibition is open to the public during regular museum hours — 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday (closed Mondays and holidays). Admission is $2; senior citizens and students with ID, $1; Founders members and children under 12, accompanied by an adult, no charge.

Gerald B. Roe and Peter Van Wagner play Verges and Constable Dogberry in the Hilberry Theater's revival of Shakespeare's popular commedy, "Much Ado About Nothing". The play will open Oct. 26 at 8:30 p.m. and continue in the Hilberry repertory through Dec. 15. Meadow Brook Hall announces anniversary stately dinner series

They're dipping into the family vaults to celebrate a golden anniversary at Meadow Brook Hall, a 100-room mansion where priceless antique and irreplaceable art treasures can be found in every room, and the public is invited.

Guests for opening night of the Golden Anniversary Stately Dinner Series will dine at tables set with the same gold-rimmed china and satin tablecloths used by former owners to celebrate their own special occasions. Antique silver normally not seen by the public will hold floral arrangements and candles.

Stately Dinners offer the rare experience of living, for a few hours, as American families of great wealth lived during the early part of the century. Structure, design and appointments of Meadow Brook Hall reflect the quality and lifestyle of that time, and Stately Dinners present dining in the context of historic and cultural enrichment.

This year's series marks the 50th anniversary of Meadow Brook Hall's completion. The hall originally belonged to Alfred and Matilda Wilson (she had been Matilda Dodge, widow of auto pioneer John Dodge). Cost for creation of the Tudor-style home was $4 million in 1929 dollars. The Wilsons bequeathed their entire 1,400-acre estate for the founding of Oakland University in Rochester, where it now serves as a cultural and conference center for the university. It is located on Adams Road, a third mile south of Walton Boulevard.

Opening Night menu offers fine American cuisine, in keeping with the Wilsons' pride in Meadow Brook Hall as an American home — built for Americans, by Americans, almost entirely of American materials. That did not prevent the family from collecting furnishings from all over the world, and subsequent dinners in the series offer foods of many nationalities.

Dinners will be Fridays — Nov. 2, English; Jan. 11, French; Feb. 8, Greek; March 7, German; April 18, French; May 9, English; June 13, French.

Complementary wines will be selected and discussed by Walter Rosenberg, who will be host for all Stately Dinner evenings.

Reservations are taken on a first-come basis. Dinners $45 per person. Prices include all wines and gratuities. All proceeds are used for the preservation of Meadow Brook Hall, a national historic site.

For reservations or further information, call Meadow Brook Hall at 377-3140.

Schoolcraft College sets 'Inspector Hound' showtime

Schoolcraft College students will present their dinner-theater production of the mystery comedy "The Real Inspector Hound" on Nov. 2-3 and 16-17 in the Waterman Campus Center.

According to director Dale Feldpausch, author Tom Stoppard is a British dramatist who has written both dramas and comedies with much success on the London stage. His plays are characterized by absurd ideas and situations which reveal profound ideas from trivial experiences.

Technical director Larry Rudick described "The Real Inspector Hound" as a spoof of an Agatha Christie mystery which Stoppard presents "with prankish zest." The play is about Birdboot and Moon, two drama critics at an absurd tabloid thriller play who observe and comment and slowly become involved in the action.

Both crtics get mixed up in the stage thrillers' search, with the help of Inspector Hound, for a homicidal maniac stalking around Lady Muldoon's Manor. The play moves fast and furious until the real Inspector Hound is identified, and the killer is apprehended.

Members of the cast include Marc Harlow, Chris Lindblom, Scott Muzinski, Joseph Rohatynski, and Larry Wilkin of Livonia; Phyllis Jo Counts of Canton, Kelly Norman of Northville and Tammy Bezrutch of Westland. Sandy Finkelstine is stage manager.

The 7 p.m. dinner will feature a buffet of roast beef and baked chicken, chef's salad, potato, vegetable, roll and butter, beverage and torte cake. The play will begin at 8:30 p.m.

Tickets are $10 per person and must be purchased in advance at the College Bookstore.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Bookstore at 591-6400, ext. 265.

Schoolcraft College is located at 18600 Haggerty Road, between Six and Seven Mile Roads in Livonia.

Hilberry Theatre revives Shakespeare's 'Much Ado'

Shakespeare's "Much Ado About Nothing", one of the Hilberry's most popular productions of last season, is being revived this fall for a limited run, beginning Friday (Oct. 26) at 8:30 p.m.

It will continue in the repertory through Dec. 15.

"Much Ado About Nothing," most famous for the high comedy of Beatrice and Benedick, also includes the near-tragedy of Hero and Claudio at the hands of the villainous Don John, and the farce of constable Dogberry, his assistant Verges, and their bumbling watchmen.

The Hilberry revival brings back Neil Thackaberry Jr. as Benedick, Peter Van Wagner as Dogberry, Gearld B. Roe as Verges, and Von Washington as Don John.

New in the cast are Edith Taylor Hunter, a graduate of Emerson College in Boston, as Beatrice; Sara Morrison Barnicle, with degrees from both George Williams College and Rosary College in Illinois, as Hero; Mark Tymchyshyn, a graduate of Illinois State University, as Claudio; and Lou Brockway of East Lansing, a graduate of the University of Michigan, as Hero's father Leonato.

The production is directed by Robert T. Hazzard, with costumes by Helen Markovitch and Jackie Durbin, and lighting by Gary M. Witt.

The play is performed on an adaptation of the Globe Theatre stage by Russell Smith, based on British scholar-designer C. Walter Hodges' drawings for a reconstructed Globe Theatre. Wayne State University currently is planning a full-scale reconstruction of the entire Globe based on Hodges' designs, in cooperation with the city of Detroit.

For ticket information and reservations for "Much Ado About Nothing," write the Holberry Box Office, Wayne State University, Detroit 48202, or call 577-2972.

Delicious breakfast fare

Fresh plums can make a colorful filling and topping for this delicious breakfast fare, that has its origin South of the Border. Utilizing hot roll mix, Mexican Sugar Plum Buns are great for breakfasts, brunches and morning coffee klatches. The recipe makes 1½ dozen buns, just enough for eating, with some left over for freezing. The next time you want something different for breakfast try Mexican Sugar Plum Buns.

Some plum luscious ideas

There are so many delicious ways to use and serve fresh California plums. To get you started, here are several short recipe ideas:

TUCK a wedge of cheese into fresh California plum halves for a quick appetizer or snack.

FOLD thinly sliced plums into quick breads or coffee cake batter.

TOSS slices of fresh California plums with sliced peaches and Bartlett pears, strawberries and grapes with lemon or lime juice to prevent darkening. Chill. Arrange on lettuce-lined salad plate. Pass dressing made by combining equal parts fruit-flavored yogurt and whipped cream.

Choose fresh California plums that are full-colored for their variety. Check for ripeness by lightly pressing on tip end of the plum; if it's slightly soft, it's ripe. If not, a day or two at room temperature will ripen plums. But, watch carefully, few fruits turn from ripe to over-ripe as quickly as fresh plums. Refrigerate ripe plums so they'll stay fresh for about 3 to 5 days.

Mexican sugar plum buns

Just about everyone is familiar with the tortilla, Mexico's bread staple, but did you know that south-of-the-border bakers also have a special talent for creating fancy pastries?

Starting from a simple ball of dough and some sweet filling or topping, Mexican bakers turn out imaginatively-shaped sweet breads that could defy any Danish!

We've borrowed this culinary specialty and added a little U.S. ingenuity — we've started with convenient hot roll mix, then filled and topped each bun with fresh plum slices. The result: A delicious treat for summer breakfasts and brunches or morning coffee klatches.

Always popular summer snacks, fresh plums also adapt beautifully to all kinds of baking: in pies, cobblers, cakes, sweet rolls, coffeecakes and tortes.

For all your fresh plum recipes, as well as for out-of-hand snacking, be sure to select unblemished fruit that's well-colored for the variety and that gives slightly at the tip end (an indication of ripeness). If plums aren't quite ripe, leave them at room temperature for a day or two; then refrigerate until needed.

Today's recipe makes 18 sweet plum buns — enough to enjoy now and later, if you freeze some. There's no trick to shaping the buns — just seal a sugar-coated plum wedge inside a round of dough, top with another plum wedge and bake to a golden brown! Enjoy Mexican Sugar Plum Buns alone with a favorite beverage or serve with butter or whipped cream cheese — absolutely delicious!

MEXICAN SUGAR PLUM BUNS

1 package (13¾ ounces) hot roll mix, calling for 1 egg
9 medium-size fresh California plums, quartered and pitted
1 cup sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten
Sugar

Prepare hot roll mix as package directs; let rise in warm place about 45 minutes. Divide dough into 18 pieces. In bowl, toss quartered plums with sugar, to coat well. For each bun, flatten a piece of dough into 5-inch circle. Place plum quarter in center of dough. Pull edges of dough up and around filling, pinching to a point. Set into greased muffin cup. Press another plum quarter in center. Let rise again in warm place until doubled in size (about 30 minutes). Brush with beaten egg and sprinkle with sugar. Bake in 375-degree oven 20 to 25 minutes or until golden brown. Remove from pan to rack. Serve warm, with butter or whipped cream cheese. Makes 1½ dozen.

CINDY SAYS

Reggie leave Yanks? Astrologist says so

By CINDY ADAMS

NEW YORK — Astrologer Jeanne Dixon is knocking out a book. Another astrologer, an Indian gent named Ostrow, predicts Yankee Reggie Jackson will walk out come November. Ostrow also says Johnny Carson will leave NBC (also in November) and that Jimmy Carter will lose the primary to Ted Kennedy.

Irving Stone's new Doubleday biographical novel, which isn't out yet but which will be made into a movie, is about Darwin ... Alan Young, who last starred on CBS's series, "Mr. Ed" (the talking horse sitcom), is going to do a CBS series again in January.

Jon Voight brushed his longtime passion, Stacey Pickren, to go back to his ex-wife, Marcheline ... Also, Lydia Criss, who is the newly divorced wife of Peter Criss, the hotshot of the rock group, Kiss, had dinner with the L.A. lawyer who did it for her, Marvin Mitchelson.

Ava Gardner is soft-pedaling the socializing and hibernating instead in her apartment in England. Reclusive Ava answered the phone and pretended she was the maid. When the caller insisted she recognized the voice, Miss Gardner snapped, "You're absolutely wrong," in that famous voice of hers.

A TV commercial outfit's looking to outfit Ginger Rogers in a $9,000 mink if she'll just pose in it ... Susan Strasberg moved baggage and scrapbooks back to New York where everybody should live.

Glamorous opera star Anna Moffo, in an elegant printed chiffon, and her husband, Robert Sarnoff, in a brown plaid sport jacket, entertained Sonny Werblin, whose wife is hospitalized. Moffo and Sarnoff looked like they were dressed for two separate parties.

Penny Marshall has a 15-year-old daughter, Tracy, who'll be on "Laverne and Shirley." She'll play a groupie or something. It'll be a one-shot appearance ... David Janssen was at a local Japanese restaurant. And he deftly shoveled up the stuff with chopsticks, too.

Nick Nolte, who was on "Rich Man, Poor Man," is looking to skip TV and try strictly for movies from now on ... Rod Stewart had barbed wire placed around his entire house in Bel Air.

Henry Winkler's advice to Robin Williams: "Quiet down. Pace yourself. Or the wind will rip the tarpaulin off your brain!"

HALLOWEEN

Although Halloween takes on a new meaning to children each year, it officially means the evening before All Hallows or All Saints' Day.

Halloween — Wednesday Oct. 31 this year — was not widely observed during the first 200 years of American settlement, according to Sally Hopkins.

Ms. Hopkins, a researcher for Hallmark Cards, said while the holiday was marked in scattered Irish Catholic communities, it only became nationally popular here in America following the huge influx of Irish immigrants in the 1840's.

Sparks, smoke, fire and flame have figured in Halloween rituals for centuries.

Keeping in line with that tradition Jaycees throughout Western Wayne County have been burning their candles at both ends in order to bring extra excitement to children by providing special Halloween festivities, including their Haunted House tours.

In Canton Township, the antiquated Folker House Nursery has been retired. But it shall soon come alive with fire, flames and thrilling adventures when the Jaycees open house for the spooky tour.

The house, located on Proctor Road, just west of Canton Center Road, is rumored to be haunted. Who's to argue.

In Wayne and Westland local Jaycee chapters are doing much the same. The Halloween story may have begun hundreds of years ago, but today it is better planned, and offers more to communities than ever before.

There is a dual purpose for the Jaycee's involvement — to make area childrens' Halloween treat special, and to also earn money through sponsoring the Halloween projects. The money earned is donated to community projects such as boosting library budgets.

Halloween in Western Wayne County is mixed with civic pride.

Ms. Hopkins explained that Halloween, the night before New Year's, traditionally was a time to let old fire die out and to light new ones. Fires were often lit on hilltops, in the belief that they rejuvenated the sun and drove away ghosts, witches and evil spirits.

But in Canton Township, at Richard and Linda Labells home the fire is being lit to attract the goblins, witches and evil spirits. Quite a switch.

The goings on expected at the LaBell residence, come Oct. 31, is expected to outdo any child's wildest imagination of what Halloween is all about.

The LaBells, like the community minded Jaycees, are putting on a Halloween show for all who wish to attend. Their purpose is also twofold — to provide treats for the young, and at the same time earn money for persons afflicted with Muscular Dystrophy. Tricky, hey!

There will be fire-lighting ceremonies at the LaBell's home. In Scotland, Ms. Hopkins said, the fire-lighting custom is called Samhnagan, after Samhain, the god of death.

Literary quotations for every occasion and seasons abound. Here's some for Halloween:

"Ghosts were created when the first man woke in the night." J.M. Barrie. Or "... for my part, I have ever believed, and do now that there are witches," Sir Thomas Browne.

According to Francis Bacon, "There is a superstition in avoiding superstition.

The quote that seems to have stood the test of time is attributed to John Masefield, "He who gives a child a treat makes joy-bells ring in Heaven's street."

Games also abound on Halloween.

The Halloween game of bobbing for apples or biting at apples suspended by a string originated generations ago in Ireland, Scotland and parts of England, according to Ms. Hopkins.

Sometimes a riskier variation was played by fixing an apple and a lighting candle at opposite ends of a suspended stick.

The stick was rotated and the object was to bite the apple without getting burned by the candle.

Another Halloween custom, says Ms. Hopkins, involves peeling an apple in one unbroken spiral. You then throw the peel over your left shoulder. If you believe the legend, it will spell out the first letter of your lover's name.

Now how about trying that little stunt at the Halloween party of your choice this year?

Love at first sight in movies and real life

By RUTH THOMPSON

Love at first sight. Even in hardboiled R-rated movies, that's often the magic moment when the audience stops talking (or hooting) and awaits further developments.

But how about love at first sight in real life? Does it happen?

A game show host once recalled asking Patty Duke when she and her husband John Astin first fell in love. She said it was during an interview tour that their paths crossed in Chicago. She "knew" that he "knew" the chemistry was right ... though, it so happened, they did not meet again for several years.

Astin, in another booth, did not hear her answer. Yes, he recalled the meeting. Patty was pretty; yes, he liked her. But did he fall in love on the spot? Well, heck, no, or words to that effect. The game show host reports that Patty cried. (But not for long. The Astin marriage continues strong and they have five offspring: his, hers and theirs.)

Chick Vennera, the earthy, exuberant Danny who instantly melts the defenses of Mollie, the bus conductor, in John Schlesinger's current film "Yanks," says yes, he did fall in love fast in real life and got married "before we knew where the rent money was coming from." The missus is Joanne Di Vito, now a choreographer.

"We met when I was hired to tour in 'Disney on Parade.' Joanne was a dance captain then. My mother had sent me to dancing school as a kid to keep me off the streets and out of fights. But for a couple of years after I got to California, I didn't let anybody know I could dance ... not until after I'd made a reputation as a dramatic actor."

And, no, the marriage suffered no strains. "It's just that both Joanne and I did want to start a family, but felt we couldn't until ✝ could see at least two years worth of income assured." A featured role in the movie "Thank God It's Friday" didn't assure him. Neither did roles in the "Vega$" pilot, nor the mini-series, "The Money Changers."

"But when 'Yanks' came along, that was it." And what also came along within the year was their first daughter, whom they named Nicole.

Berlinda Tolbert, who plays Jenny Willis Jefferson in the high-rated CBS series, "The Jeffersons," says that after seven months she's "still on my honeymoon," and she sounds blissful when she says it.

Her husband is NBC newsman Robert Reid. And how did they meet? Well, Berlinda took her first trip ever to Atlanta last winter to help promote a program for PBS. She also took along (her own idea of) a chaperone.

PBS being neutral territory, "Bob, too, was involved in the reception and assigned to show me the city. I was to be there only one day. But it snowed — an almost unheard-of thing — so I had to stay over. And we were both invited to the same dinner party.

"Then I went on to Philadelphia to do some interviews over the weekend and he followed me. That's when we decided."

The place: Providence, R.I., "because they don't have the usual waiting period." The date: Feb. 14. "But not because it was Valentine's Day — we didn't even realize it was. My chaperone had to be back in Los Angeles the 15th and we wanted her at the wedding."

Voice confusion led to actor's specialty

Chicago couldn't always tell the difference between Daws Butler and the engine of a cold Model T.

That unique confusion pushed Butler into a 40-year career that has seen the diminutive character actor give voice to some of the most famous cartoon creatures in the world of animation, including Yogi Bear, Quick Draw McGraw and Huckleberry Hound. His vocal artistry will be heard again when he "speaks for" Raggedy Andy in the upcoming Halloween special, "Raggedy Ann and Andy in the Pumpkin Who Couldn't Smile," Wednesday, Oct. 31, on CBS.

A shy youngster who was ill at ease in large groups, Butler took public speaking lessons to buoy his self-confidence and "graduated" to doing impressions (from his own material) in amateur contests around his native Chicago. In spite of a repertoire that was limited to Franklin Roosevelt, Rudy Vallee and the aforementioned Model T, he began to win some prizes and a modest following. Then, he formed an act with two other amateur contest veterans. As The Three Short Waves, they specialized in impressions of radio personalities and movie greats.

Butler served in the U.S. Naval Reserve intelligence branch for four years during World War II and then brought his family to Hollywood, where he broke into radio, working as a dramatic actor and capitalizing on his versatility at "doubling" a variety of voices.

In 1948, Butler starred with Stan Freberg in the West Coast's first television puppet show, the multi-Emmy winning "Time for Beany." Also with Freberg, he co-wrote and co-voiced comedy records, including "St. George and the Dragonet," the first comedy recording to sell more than one million copies.

Butler's voice has been "behind" hundreds of radio and animated television commercials, and he created the vocal characters for many world-famous stars out of the animation production houses of Hanna-Barbera, Jay Ward and other companies.

Butler conducts an actor's workshop in his home and at several adult schools in the Los Angeles area, sharing his expertise on acting and the special art of dialect and voice characterization.

For Theatre Guild

'Brown's Body' opens season

The Theatre Guild of Livonia-Redford will open its 26th season this weekend with Stephen Vincent Benet's famous Civil War drama "John Brown's Body".

The story centers around two Northern and Southern soldiers and their lives and loves during one of the most difficult periods in American history.

The play, which will be staged at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow and Saturday will be directed by Dr. Reginald Worsley.

The cast is a mixture of new and old members of the guild. Shirley Hulet of Livonia is a charter member of the group and has served as an actress, director, member of the Board of Directors and historian. Many will remember her for her leading roles in "Come Back, Little Sheba", "Cabaret", and "Two By Two".

While this is Ellen Akins first role for the guild, she has been in shows produced by Dearborn Civic Theatre, the Dearborn Summer Repertory, and Greenfield Village. Likewise, Helen Slaven may be new to our audiences, but has appeared in Schoolcraft College Dinner Theatre's "Godspell" and majored in drama at Eastern Michigan University.

Two of the male actors have appeared in guild productions previously: Ron Samuel in "Seascape" and "My Three Angels", and Doug Wisby in "1776". Samuel has also directed for the guild and many other theatre groups. He is a resident of Grosse Pointe. Doug Wisby, who attended Wayne State University, has worked backstage at the Bonstelle and Hilberry and performed with the Court Theatre, Henry Ford Community College (HFCC) and other groups.

Matt Higgins, a newcomer to the guild, is a student at HFCC, and played in "The Bald Soprano" and "The Mousetrap" there. He also appeared in "1776" for the Dearborn Summer Repertory.

Admission is $4, and special rates are available to students, senior citizens, and groups on opening night and the Sunday matinee. The Guild playhouse is located at 15138 Beech Daly (just south of Five Mile Road) in Redford. For reservations, call 255-2547.

Civic Theatre sets November curtain calls

Ira Levin's chiller, "Veronica's Room", which will be presented by the Wayne-Westland Civic Theatre, is being studied intensely and rehearsed by its newly selected cast.

The story, set in the outskirts of Boston, focuses on a young, vibrant woman who is challenged to portray another woman, Veronica, who has been dead for 49 years.. This challenge has been presented by the two housekeepers of an old Victorian mansion where Veronica once lived. Their wish is to bring peace to Veronica's dying sister who believes her to be still alive.

Considering this rather intriguing and a mission of "good will," the young woman consents, much against the wishes of her boyfriend. Once she dons Veronica's clothing from the 1930s, events slowly begin to occur, which fling the audience into new dimensions and times. The psychological horror that the young woman experiences leaves the audience in the grips of this suspenseful drama.

The role of the young woman will be played by Nancy Dubay. Marv Nochman will be portraying the male housekeeper, while Stephanie Booley portrays the female housekeeper. The young boyfirend will be played by Pat Nally.

"Veronica's Room" is being co-directed by a husband and wife team, Jerry and Jeanne Thomas.

"Veronica's Room" will be presented Friday and Saturday, Nov. 2 and 3, at 8 p.m. at John Glenn High School Auditorium. For ticket information call 261-3183 or 729-0180.

HOROSCOPE by Aboudé

ARIES March 21-April 20

Generosity should come easy to you now and it nets you many gains. Don't do things for the results you expect or would like, however, do them out of the goodness of your heart and because you owe it.

TAURUS April 21-May 21

You have a decent week in store if your temper doesn't flare up. Keep this under control and you get the results you've been working for. Enjoy a celebration this weekend.

GEMINI May 22-June 21

This is a good week for you with several days bringing significant news or results. Enjoy newfound popularity and shine your brightest. Make minor changes around home for peace of mind.

CANCER June 22-July 23

You have the right ideas and putting them to work is the hard part. You have to make an effort that will bring the house down so to speak. Get the people you need behind you and go to it. You shine on the weekend.

LEO July 24-August 23

Family affairs are still highlighted and you have to work on the relationship between you and brother or sister. Give without asking for something in return. Plan a special weekend together.

VIRGO August 24-Sept. 23

Rather than go out and spend, stay home and think about it. You need time to reflect and this doesn't cost anything. It could save you a lot. Sort things out before a decision is asked for.

LIBRA Sept. 24-Oct. 23

You may have pushed someone far as they will go without breaking away from you altogether. Stop pushing and start letting things happen naturally. Be patient my friend, good things will come.

SCORPIO Oct. 24-Nov. 22

You're more sensitive than you'd like others to think. Let this very special side of you show. You won't regret letting down defenses so another can grow closer to you. Expect a happy weekend, get out.

SAGITTARIUS Nov. 23-Dec. 21

Romance is the order of the day all week. Either you find a new one or enhance an old one. You are the kept product in the relationship and it all depends on how natural you are.

CAPRICORN Dec. 22-Jan. 20

You have to force yourself to get anything accomplished. I suggest that you concentrate on business and take whatever leisure time as it comes. Relax this weekend only if everything is caught up.

AQUARIUS Jan 21-Feb. 19

Let it shine this week. You hit all your hunches right on the nose and you can't fail at anything you've studied with care. Proceed with caution however, there are those who would cause you problems.

PISCES Feb. 20-March 20

You get busy this week, but be sure you set aside time for loved one(s). You can get too wrapped up in your work and let a relationship slide until it ceases to be a relationship. Be careful.

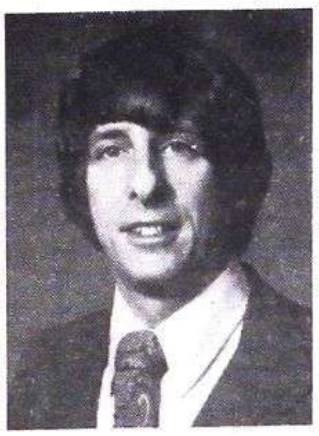
25 Years of Chiropractic Service for Life and Health



DR. RICHARD NEWMAN
Associate Chiropractor

DR. RAY ELWART
Director and Founder

DR. DAN ELWART
Associate Chiropractor

WE ARE OPEN 6 DAYS A WEEK WITH THREE CHIROPRACTORS TO SERVE YOU!

25 Years of Chiropractic Service!

Dr. Ray Elwart, director and founder of the Romulus Chiropractic Clinic, attracted people at such a rate that it is necessary to add another Chiropractor, his son Dr. Dan Elwart, to his staff along with Dr. Warren Atkinson, who joined Dr. Ray Elwart last year.

The three doctors have a combined Chiropractic Service of 25 years.

Dr. Ray Elwart said that the thousands of patients who have recovered their health are continuing to send us others who need life restored to them.

By continuous updating and expansion of our facilities, we look forward to many more years of serving our communities' health needs.

"Got Wonderful Relief" Says Col. Sanders

Kentucky Fried Chicken Man Keeps Fit With Chiropractic Care

In 1956, Harland Sanders was an out-of-work 66-year-old. Today he is a millionaire, and the business he started — known round the world as "Kentucky Fried Chicken" — grosses over one billion dollars a year.

The "Chicken" Colonial has become a legend in his time and it took less than twenty years. Now 85, he has visited a chiropractor usually once or twice a week for sixty years, as he says, to keep fit through the marvelous benefits derived from staying "in adjustment." It is unfortunate that many who have faith in chiropractic, nevertheless, do not use it as Colonel Sanders does on a preventive basis. Many wait until they have acute health problems before seeing their chiropractor. As soon as they feel better, they discontinue their visits. The Colonel is a living example of the benefits of regular chiropractic care — an amazing man. — PSCA Newsletter.

Editor's Note

These testimonials do not mean that chiropractic cures or guarantees a cure. They are to prove that, by removing nerve interference, the body heals itself.

SUFFERING NEEDLESSLY?

Millions are turning to chiropractic because they are recognizing the scientific principles of nature that have made spinal adjustments effective for many conditions where other methods have failed.

SPINAL NERVE INVOLVEMENT CAUSES MANY CONDITIONS

The spinal chart shown above is directed especially to those people who have tried to regain their health through methods other than chiropractic, and have failed. That failure should not lead to discouragement, but to greater determination to discover the fundamental cause of all disease.

Since the discovery of chiropractic, no one needs to feel that he or she is destined to be sick all their life. Remember, "Where there is life there is hope and he who has hope has everything."
